

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

NOTE.

THE serious and continued ill-health of Mr. BAILEY has hitherto prevented the issue of the Second Part of the Inventories of Church Goods, and consequently the completion of the First Series of the Publications of the Chetham Society.

As the returns for the Hundreds of West Derby, Blackburn, and Leyland, are complete in themselves, and have been in type for some years past, it has been thought well by the Council to issue these Hundreds as the Second Part of the volume, so as to bring the First Series to a close, with the hope, however, that Mr. Bailey's health may allow of his editing, as a separate volume, the Inventories for the Hundreds of Amounderness, Lonsdale, and Furness, and giving the members of the Chetham Society the detailed Introduction promised in the Temporary Preface to the First Part.

The last four pages of the volume (pp. 129-132) have not had the advantage of Mr. Bailey's revision or corrections.

West Derby Hundred.

HIS hundred, coextensive with the old Deanery of Warrington, was next in importance to Salford hundred. It comprised twenty parishes.

The Inquisition was in charge of Edward, third Earl of Derby; Sir Thomas Gerard, Knt.; Thomas Boteler, Esq. The indentures are uniformly dated Tuesday, 4 October 1552. The form of them differs from those of the former hundred; one result of which is that the names of the incumbents do not appear. The reference to the membranes is 3/49.

Edward, third Earl of Derby, was born in 1510. He succeeded his father in 1521, and died in 1574. In his youth he had been placed under the charge of Cardinal Wolsey, in whose household he may have acquired a love of pageantry and hospitality. The Cardinal was one of the supervisors of his father's will. In 1532 he was present with the king on the Field of the Cloth of Gold. He became a Knight of the Bath in the following year. In 1536 he was engaged with the Lancashire and Cheshire forces in suppressing the rebellion known as the Pilgrimage of Grace. Six years later he raised forces for the army which invaded Scotland under the Duke of Norfolk. In 1544 he entered into the royal designs on the Monasteries, on the dissolution of which he acquired great possessions. At the accession of Edward VI. he was made a Knight of the Garter. His worldly prudence was such, that Queen Mary made him, in 1553, Lord High Steward; and Queen Elizabeth, in 1558, created him a Privy Councillor, and added his name to many of the ecclesiastical commissions of the reign. His life and character have been amply set forth in Canon Raines's Stanley Papers. Cf. Collins's Peerage, edition Brydges, vol. iii, pp. 69 seq.; Lanc. Visit., 1533, p. 6; ixth Report Dep. Keeper, appendix, p. 200; Hollinworth MS., sub an. 1 Edward VI.

Sir Thomas Gerard of Bryn, near Ashton-in-Makerfield, co. Lanc., appears to have been High Sheriff of the county in 1548, being then "miles." In a list, 1549, he appears as knt. He married Jane, daughter of Peter Legh of Lyme and Haydock, Esq., another daughter of whom, Cecilia, married that Sir Thomas Butler who died in 1550. About 1542 Dns Johes Ashcroft appeared at a visitation, being a stipendiary at Winwick, paid by Thomas Gerrard, Esq.; but he is marked as suspended. At the same time Hugo Cokson was a chantry priest at Wigan, on Gerard's stipend, having paid his first-fruits 36 Henry VIII. Sir Thomas is not to be confounded with his son of the same name, who was twice imprisoned in the Tower as an adherent of Mary, Queen of Scots; twice High Sheriff of Lanc., 1553 (miles), 1558 (knt.); knighted by Queen Mary; M.P. for Lancashire in 1563. Of both father and son, Foster states that they were knights of the shire in 8 and 9 Élizabeth. (Baines, vol. iii, p. 641; Annals of Warrington, p. 439; Piccope MSS., x, p. 101; Foster's Ped.; Lieut., pp. 2, 16, 37; Visit. 1664-5, p. 116; Stanley Papers, vol. ii, p. 157; Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 262.)

Thomas Butler, Esq., of Bewsey (1516-79), was the descendant of a grandfather (of the same name, the fifteenth baron of Warrington), who, "of blessed mind and good purpose," founded the Grammar-School of Warrington - a benefaction to which the editor of this book owes his early education. In 40 Elizabeth, Peter Warburton and Elizabeth his wife, grand-daughter of Sir Thomas Butler, knt., the founder, were plaintiffs in the Duchy Court against Sir Thomas Gerard, knt., sole surviving trustee, in a case in which were concerned lands, &c., for the support of the Free Grammar School (Cal., vol. iii, p. 389); as also the nomination of a schoolmaster (Ibid., p. 408; and cf. vol. ii, p. 509). The founder's son, Sir Thomas (1495-1550), was the king's receiver for the counties Palatine of Lancashire and Cheshire. He it was, as Thomas Boteler, Esq., who, in 1523-4, was the king's commissioner in Lancashire and Cheshire to make certain enquiries about the occupants of benefices; and his certificate or return for the Wapentake of Salford, the only division remaining, and quoted passim, was addressed to the Rt. Hon. Sir Thomas More, knt., Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and to the King's most honourable Council (Cal. to Pleadings, vol. ii, p. 29). He was involved throughout his life in pecuniary embarrassments, and seems to have entered into the ecclesiastical changes with the view of relieving himself from his obligations. He witnessed the surrender of Furness Abbey, 9 April 1537, and received a lease of some of the estates of Up-Holland Priory. Thomas, the commissioner of these indentures, the representative of the house in its glory, was his son by a daughter of Piers or Peter Legh of Haydock and Bradley, Esq. On the accession of King Edward, he was in possession of some office in the court; and in 1552 was a knight of the shire of his county, which he served in various capacities. He held from the crown a lease of the estates of the Butler chantry in Warrington church. He received the honour of knighthood from Queen Elizabeth, to whom he was eminently loyal. He was an advocate of the Reformation doctrines: in 1567 it was said that the gentry of Lancashire, from Warrington all along the sea coasts, were of the Popish faction, except Mr. Butler, and withdrew themselves from religion. His goods were inventoried after his death, in 1579, and there are noted "lynnyns with books, clocke and bell"; "one Englysshe byble wth other bookes esteemed to iiiji - the clocke and bell esteemed to iiijii." In the knight's chamber was a picture of Christ, and the Queen's Majesty's picture iijs iiijd. It is suspicious to find among this property eight vestments and two copes of velvet and silk "fayre ymbrodered." His estates descended to his only son Edward, who, drawn into the toils of the Earl of Leicester, squandered them and brought to an end an ancient and an honourable house. (Visitation, 1533, p. 96; 1567, p. 106; West's Furness, p. 111; Lords of Warrington, chaps. xxii seq.; Chant., pp. 57 seq.; Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 231; Lieut., pp. 2, 20 seq.; Transactions Hist. Soc. Lanc., vol. viii, pp. 53 seq.; Wills, vol. ii, pp. 120-6; Baines, vol. i, pp. 316, 513; vol. iii, p. 660).

In Bishop Birde's enquiry, January 1548, into the misappropriation of church property in his diocese (see Introduction), he reports upon three cases in this deanery (cf. §§ Warrington, p. 62, Wigan, Childwall); adding: "in all other churchis off this Deanrie ther is nothing sold alienated or put awaye out of ther said churchis or chapels." (State Papers, Dom. Ser, Edward VI, vol. iii, No. 4.)

In thirteen churches in this deanery, whose spiritual condition was reported upon about the year 1563, according to the details given under the separate parishes, it is found that the total number of communicants was 31,500. It was reported further that there were seven preachers in the deanery, whereof only one was able and painful; two were insufficient; three were non-resident; and one was not painful.

Membrane No. 19. Very illegible,

In 1534-5 Thom' Maria Wynkefeld was rector (Valor Ecclesiasticus, vol. v, p. 219), as to whose double name Camden has this comment: "Two Christian names are rare in England; and I only remember now his Maiesty who was named Charles Iames, as the Prince his sonne Henry Frederic; and among private men Thomas Maria Wingfield, and sir Thomas Posthumus Hobby" (Remains, Lond., 4to, 1614, p. 49). Shortly after the above date Edward Kebell, M.A., is found to be rector, and would be the person concerned in this inventory. In the Visitation about 1551 Kebell attended with six more priests; and two others on the same list are marked "mortuus." In 1547 (15 June) Kebell was installed in the third Prebend of Westminster, his successor there being appointed 11 April 1554. Deprived of his preferments by Queen Mary, he was afterwards beneficed in Warwickshire. In the Visitation held between 1557 and 1560, Thomas Amerye is returned as rector (Piccope MSS., x, 101, 157, 183; Le Neve, vol. iii, p. 351; Warrington Church Notes, pp. 55 seq.; and cf. Chant., pp. 59-60). In 31 Henry VIII., Henry Cookeson brought an action in the Duchy Court against Edward Kebell, clerk, and others, for trespass, distress, and rescue of cattle in Mote Hyll Pasture, Werinton (Cal., vol. i, p. 161). Two years later Sir Thomas Butler, knt., was defendant in a case in which Edward Keble claimed a debt out of the lands of Warrington Parsonage (vol. i, p. 164). Peter Anderton was claimant (against Sir Thomas Butler and William Bruch) of certain issues and profits of Weryngton Parsonage for a debt upon recognizance by statute (vol. i, p. 199). There was further litigation in Elizabeth's reign concerning the parsonage (Cal., vol. iii, pp.

- 34, 75). Kebell would be better deserving of remembrance as a Warrington Worthy, had he not impoverished his successors by granting a lease of his parsonage to Sir Thomas Boteler, which only expired in 1743 (Annals of the Lords of Warrington, pp. 453 seq.) The three following deeds, relating to this discreditable matter, are in the Exchequer Records (Nos. 46, 47, 48; xxxth Report Deputy Keeper, pp. 177-8):
- (1.) Confirmation of a demise of the rectory of Weryngton, 24 March, 34 Hen. VIII. (1542-3). Inspeximus and confirmation by John [Birde] Bishop of Chester, as ordinary of the parish church and rectory of Weryngton, co. Lancaster, and by Thomas Butler of Bewsee, co. Lancaster, kt., as patron of the same church, of an indenture dated 10 March, 34 Henry VIII., made between Edward Keble, clerk, rector of the same church, of the one part, and Richard Penketh, son and heir apparent of Thomas Penketh of Penketh, co. Lancaster, gentleman, and John Grymesdiche of the Inner Temple of London, gentleman, of the other part, whereby the said Edward demises for himself and his successors parsons of the said church, to the said Richard and John the said parish church and parsonage, with the dwelling house, glebe lands, other lands, tithes, and profits of all kinds thereto belonging, to hold to them, their executors and assigns, for 200 years, at a yearly rent of 201, to the said Edward and his successors. The said Richard and John undertaking to keep the premises in repair, to pay all tenths and charges whatsoever charged on the parsonage, and to find a priest to undertake the cure of the said parsonage.
- (2.) Demise of the Rectory of Weryngton, 28 April, 35 Henry VIII. (1543). Indenture dated 28 April, 35 Henry VIII, and made between Sir Thomas Butler of Bewse, co. Lancaster, knt., on the one part, and Richard Penketh, son and heir of Thomas Penketh, co. Lancaster, gent., and John Grymesdiche of the Inner Temple of London, gent., of the other part, whereby the said Richard and John demise unto the said Sir Thomas, his executors and assigns, the parish church and parsonage of Weryngton, and premises mentioned in the foregoing document, for 20 [200] years without paying any rent to the said Richard and John.
- (3.) Sir Thomas Butler: Debt, 5 May, 35 Henry VIII. (1543). Indenture between the king, on the one part, and Sir Thomas Butler of Bewsee, co. Lancaster, kt., of the other part, whereby the said Sir Thomas undertakes to pay the king, by yearly instalments of 100 marks, the sum of 500l. in behalf of James Morrice, who, with John Morrice, being joint receivors unto the king of the lands of Richmond, are indebted to the king in the sum of 844l. os. 4d., and if the said Sir Thomas fail to pay the 100 marks yearly, then the king is to enter into possession of the rectory of Weryngton with its appurtenances, which the said Sir Thomas holds for a term of 20 [200] years by the last-named deed.

Bishop Downham returned, I April, 16 Elizabeth, in reference to stipends paid in his diocese, that "S' Robert Hawghton was buryed at Waryngton Anno D'n'i 1553 and had a penc'on of p' ann'." Rob'tus Aghton had appeared at a visitation of the deanery, 2 Edward VI. (Piccope MSS., x, 157); and in the same year Sir Robert Haghton, chaplain, and others, were defendants in an action for assault on the bailiff of Weryngton, brought by Sir Thomas Butler (Cal. Duchy Pleadings, vol. i, p. 222). The same bishop returned that "S' Robert Haull was buried at Waryngton aforesayd Anno d'n'i 1561 and had a penc'on of [4l. 1e. 4d., Browne-Willis, vol. ii, p. 108] p' ann'" (Special Commissions, No. 3258). Hall's ties to Warrington are explained by a passage in Hist. of the Friary, p. 72. Dns Rob'tus hall, and Dns Ric'us Taylior attended the visitation 2 Edward VI. (Piccope MSS., x, 157). Sir Richard Taylor, priest, was defendant in the Duchy Court in an assault case, being prosecuted by Richard Bruche (Cal., vol. i, p. 186).

About 1563 this populous parish contained 3000 communicants. The yearly value of the parsonage was 2001, "whereof the p'son [then Thomas Amerye] hath by corruption but 2011, a pr'acher not painefull" (Dom. Ser., Elizabeth, vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590 the parsonage was in lease to Mr. Dudley, patron; and the parson, Mr. [John] Asheworth, was a preacher. At the two chapels of Hollingford and New Church there were no preachers. The number of communicants is not altered (Gibson's Lydiate Hall, p. 248).

Gastrell (vol. ii, pp. 232-3) records that there were two churchwardens for the town, by ancient custom, named by Lord Warrington and Mr. Legh of Lyme; and three for the other townships. The names of those in the indenture are common on the first few pages of the old register, except Kilne and Holbeche, which are unusual. The christian name Hamlet is not infrequent in these parts.

The bells are mentioned in the statutes of the Grammar School, by which it was ordered that after the bellman, on a certain day in April of every year, had gone through the town of Warrington, desiring every man, woman, and child to pray for the souls of the founder and his heirs, "then ye clerk of ye church of Warrington" was to cause "three long peals to be rungen wth all ye Bells in ye steeple, except ye Sanctus Bell, and ye same clerk to have for ye Ringinge xxd, and ye bellman to have ijd" (Lanc. Chantries, p. 58). The old bells were recast, and six new ones provided in 1698, the inscriptions on which are found in Warrington Church Notes, Preface, p. ix.

An interesting discovery of a richly embroidered chasuble at Warrington has relation to the vestments here calendered. The dresses which survived the visits of the inquisitors of Edward were destroyed in great numbers in the early part of the reign In that interim, one of the Warrington vestments was hidden near of Elizabeth. the rood-loft of the old church. In the year 1824, when some alterations in the chancel were being made, under the care of Mr. Rickman, a doorway near the roodscreen was re-opened, and a staircase leading upwards to the rood-loft was discovered, and another flight of steps leading downwards to a crypt. It was upon one of the steps of the latter that the vestment was found carefully wrapt up. The Rector of Warrington, the Rev. R. A. Rawstorne, ultimately gave it to the Rev. Dr. Molyneux, the Roman Catholic priest there, and it has since formed part of the wardrobe of the chapel. It was recently exhibited at the opening of Warrington Art Gallery. An excellent authority, the Rev. Dr. Rock, described it in the Proceedings of the Royal Archaeological Institute, 4 February, 1870 (vol. xxvii, p. 135-7). When found it had, he says, two orphreys attached which were since removed. The embroideries " are in the poorest kind of English work which marked the end of the fifteenth and the beginning of the sixteenth century, with the one redeeming quality of the excellence of their dispering or grounding, which is in general well worked. All the figures, and the niches within which they stand, are wrought in coloured silks, after the mode of the opus plumarium or feather-stitch, while the golden threads of the dispering are as bright as they looked the first day they were put in, being wound round with pure metal, and not as now composed of base and copper alloy. Though quite inferior as works of fine execution, these orphreys are truly valuable, as furnishing some curious samples of symbolism and historic allusions. The cross on the back is somewhat in the Y shape, and three angels, each with a golden chalice in his hand, receive the sacred blood trickling from the hands and pierced side of our Lord upon the cross. To signify the perpetual virginity, not only of our Lord and the Blessed Virgin Mary, but also of the beloved disciple St. John, two lily plants, but with the flowers coloured pink, are shooting up, one on each side, form the ground at the foot of the cross. If the persons of Abel, Abraham and Melchisedeck, together with two of the apostles, may be easily recognized by their emblems, to not a few spectators it may be difficult to say why that figure in armour, with a battle axe resting on his shoulder, should be there. In my mind there cannot be a doubt that the knight we behold so shewn is meant for Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, beheaded at Pontefract, A.D. 1322, in the reign of Edward II." The Earl was one of the leaders of the popular party of England against the foreigners whom the king was enriching; and on his death a martyr's honours were accorded to him. Robert de Werrington, in 1327, was interested in collecting money to erect a chapel where the Earl met his death. "Far into the days of Henry VIII.," concludes Dr. Rock, "there lived in the English mind a loving and a reverent remembrance of Thomas, Earl of Lancaster; and the hiding so carefully away within a concealed part of this church at Warrington of this one out of the many chasubles which must have belonged to it, speaks of the hope that other and less clouded and stormy days would dawn when the vestment with the likeness embroidered on it of a man so loved would again be worn at its altar." Of. Warrington Examiner, 29 September, 1877; and Beamont's Warrington Church Notes, p. 120, and Lords of Warrington, p. 473.

Cloth of Damask was a woven material, much used for church-hangings and furniture.

Fannane is the same as fanon or phanon (from the German fahne or fanue); otherwise the maniple (from manue); the latter so called because it was slipped over the left hand. The short white sleeves worn by butchers are called fannels or fannons. The fanon was used at first to wipe the chalice. In process of time it was embroidered like the stole, and became a mere ornament, but still a part of a complete vestment. In the church-goods made away with at Bomnbie, co. Lincoln, there is mentioned a vestment "and ye rest as fanells, stooles, and such like, brent iiij years ago, p'te of the same and the rest hath made quishwines of" (Peacock, p. 53). The fanon has been occasionally used at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and elsewhere. According to Tyndale (Answer to More, Parker Soc., p. 73) its mystical signification was, that it was the cord with which the Saviour's hands were bound.

Crules is a stuff made of tightly-twisted worsted, and was used for hangings. The orthography varies. It is sometimes called Crewel, under which name it will be readily recognized as a kind of work newly introduced amongst ladies' fancy work. A vestment in Kirton-in-Lindsey is said to have been of green croylle (Peacock, p. 231). In East Barnet, Herts, there was one of red and another of white cruyll (Cussans, p. 33); also (p. 66) ij copes of cruell. Cf. Shuttleworth Accounts, p. 560.

The tunicle of cruel work was the dress of the sub-deacon (Cf. Bolton, anted, p. 25). It was a much plainer vestment than the deacon's. A description of it, with a cut, is to be found in Dr. Rock's Church of our Fathers, vol. i, pp. 383 seq.

Dornyx, Dorynx, or Dornick, was a cloth used for hangings, &c. It resembled damask, but was of inferior quality. It took its name from a Dutch town Doornick, i.e., Tournay, in French Flanders, where it was originally made. Tournay is described by Heylyn as a great, rich, mighty and strong town (Cosmography, edition 1657, p. 366), in whose time, from the neighbouring town of Armentiers, 25,000 pieces of cloth were sent yearly to Italy, and thence to Constantinople. Dornick was well known in domestic and ecclesiastical use in England. Cere cloths were made of it (Peacock, p. 204). Amongst the Bury Wills (Camden Soc., vol. xlix, pp. 135-6) we have, in 1538, "vi payre of shets with the sparver curtanys of dornyke," and "oon coverynge of dornykks." The editor says that there was a celebrated manufactory of dornicks, hats, and coverlets, at Pulham in Norfolk; and that Agnes Herryes, widow, of Bury, 1560, bequeathed "j couerlyght of Pulhamworke" to the church of S. James in that town, "to serue at the mynystration of the comunyon" (p. 258). The fabrick was made at Norwich as late as 1685: Thomas Tilney of Norwich, Dornixweaver, 1665; and Margaret, wife of James Tilney of Norwich, Dornix-weaver, 1685 (MS. Wills). The price of the stuff about the date of this inventory is found by the following entry from the churchwardens' books of Bungay-St.-Mary's (East Anglian, vol. ii, p. 229): "1550. Jt. paid for vj yards of brode Dornycks for the table viijs. iiijd." Cf. Whitaker's Radcliffe's Letters, p. 133.

The earliest of the present church plate bears the dates 1615 and 1627.

Bishop Birde in his enquiry, 1548, about the alledged misappropriation of church property in his diocese, reports thus upon Warrington: "There is nothing alienated sold or put away ther but y' ther is certen good off the church as apperis bie a bill indented dolyu'd to John rigewaye and others the church wardens off werington to the use off the church and att the yeris end they' to delyu' them to the next church wardens" (State Papers, Dom. Ser., Edward VI., vol. iii, No. 4).

About 1551 the following clergy of Winwick and the chapelries attended a visitation, some of them being stipendiary and chantry priests: Mr. Will'ms bulling (his name is spelled Bulleyn in Valor Ecclesiasticus), rect.; Dns hugo bulling, cur.; Dns Joannes ascroft; Dns thomas curles; Dns thomas coke; Dns oswaldus keye; Dns laurentius penington; Dns Nic. Swane; Dns Joannes du'sture; Dns Rob'tus ap Iohn; Dns Ric'us smyth; Dns Will'ms Standley; Dns matheus penington; Dns Isc. hasilhurst (Piccope MSS., x, 157). In 1534-5 Dunster was chantry-priest of Newton chantry (Valor, vol. v, p. 220); and he was buried at Wynwycke 29 Maye 1571, having a pension of per ann. with respect to that chantry (Special Commissions, No. 3258; cf. Chantries, p. 75). "Sr Henrye Barnes was buryed at Wynwycke the xxith daye of Marche Anno d'n'i 1566, and had a penc'on of per ann'" (Special Commissions). On the death of William Bulling, Thomas Stanley, presented by the Earl of Derby, 23 March 1551-2, succeeded. He paid his firstfruits 5 April 1552, in which month he was admitted. He therefore was rector at the date of this indenture. He was afterwards reconsecrated Bishop of Man by foreign power, 4 Mary, July 1557-8. About the same time he became rector of Wigan and of North Meols. He also held the rectory of Badsworth in Yorkshire, and that of Berwick-on-Tweed. He is said to have been an illegitimate son of Edward, Lord Mounteagle, in allusion to which Henry VIII. (1537-8) dispensed with Thomas Stanley, non obstante his bastardye, to hold two livings, with cure or without. In 1557 he was holding three Lancashire livings with his bishopric. About 1561, when residing at Durham, his countryman, Bishop Pilkington, described him as lying there at ease, "and as merry as Pope Joan." In a visitation of Bishop Downham's in 1562, his name as "Ep'us Sodoren', rect.," appears under Winwicke, Wigan, and Northmelis; but it is added to the first two places, that he is "excused by the Lord Bishop." He died in 1568. (Piccope MSS., x, 164; xvi, p. 259; Chant., vol. i, pp. 67-9; Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 263; Parker's Corresp., p. 222, compared with Whitaker's Whalley, vol. ii, p. 419; Baines, vol. iii, p. 540; vol. iv, p. 277; Seacome's Memoir, p. 47; Le Neve, vol. iii, p. 326). In 3 Edward VI. Gregory Charlett, priest, and James Downall, were concerned in litigation in the Duchy Court about the title to a messuage and lands in Assheton in Wynwhik (Cal. vol. ii, p. 99).

About 1563 there were 3000 communicants. The value of the parsonage was 500l., and the then preacher (left in charge by Bishop Stanley) was insufficient (Dom. Ser., Elizabeth, vol. xxxi, No. 47).

In 1590 the parsonage was in lease to Mr. Edw. Standley; the parson, John Caldwell (he seems to have been resident at Mobberley), dwelt in Cheshire, and though he himself was a preacher, his minister was not. Nor were there preachers at the two chapels of Newton and Ashton. The communicants were 4000 (Lydiate Hall, p. 248).

The names of the churchwardens in the indenture are still local names. In 1641, Clayton and Hasilhurst are not found amongst the male inhabitants, and Southerin but twice. The wardens were four in number in Gastrell's time, and were chosen according to the Canon, and served for Winwick, Haydook, Ashton, and Culcheth (Not. Cost., vol. ii, p. 264).

The old Winwick bells were recast in 1711 according to the dates upon them. Clocks were, in some way, attached to bells at this time. In the inventories of Derbyshire church goods, 1552, at Horsley there was a clock upon the greatest bell; at West Hallam there was one clock going upon one of the bells; and at Ashbourne there were iij belles in the steeple j clocke uppon j of them (Reliquary, vol. xi, pp. 6, 7, 12).

Trinitie Church was "the Chantrie at the altar of the trenytie whin the p'oche church bifore-said" (vis., Winwick), reported upon by Henry VIII's commissioners in 1546-7 (Chant., pp. 69 seq.) It was founded by Sir Gilbert de Haydock, 4 Edward III. Lawrence Pennington, above named, was appointed chantry-priest in 1532. When the Valor Reclesiasticus was compiled about two years later, Xp'ofer Johnson was the chaplain (vol. v, p. 220). Circa 1550, it is noted that he was paid by Peter Legh, Esq., the heir of the founder of the chantry; and in Warden Vaux's time he attended another visitation (Piccope MSS., x, 101, 183; Beamont's Winnick, edition 1878, pp. 81 seq.). The chapel was continued for Protestant services; for in 10 Elizabeth Charles Sotheron and others, inhabitants of the towns, villages and hamlets of Culcheth, Holcrofte, Risley and Pasffurlonge, prosecuted in the Duchy Court John Culcheth of Culcheth, and claiming exception, under Sir John Holcrofte, knt., having the inheritance, the matter in dispute being the maintenance of a priest for divine service in the chapel of ease called Trinity church (Cal., vol. ii, 368). This Charles Sotheron is doubtless the person who is twice named in the inventory.

Sir Piers or Peter Legh, who seems to have obtained possession of some property in the Haydock chantry upon which he had some claim, was the representative of the Leghs of Bradley and Lyme, born 1513, died 1590. In 1550 he was high sheriff of Lancashire; and eight years later he founded Disley chapel in Stockport parish. In 26 Henry VIII. there was a commission, with interrogatories and depositions, concerning the foundation of chantry priests and deacons at Dyaley chapel, and money lent by Thomas Ardern to Sir Peter Leigh, knt., whose executors, and whose son, Peter Leigh, priest, were concerned in the enquiry (Cal. to Pleadings, vol. ii, p. 49). Henry VIII's commissioners reported that the Leigh or Haydock chantry, in Winwick, then contained a chalice, weighing 80s., and two old vestments; and the former may be the article for which the wardens refused to be "chargit." (Beamont's House of Lyme, pp. 82 seq.; Chant., p. 69.)

Henry Byrom, Esq., of Byrom in this parish, owned the advowson of Grappenhall church, Cheshire, in the year 1555, and he was buried at Winwick before 1559 (The Byrom Pedigree, p. 8). Cf. Ormerod's Cheshire, new edition, vol. i, pp. 596, 598. Henry Byrom, gent., presented to the rectory of Winwick in 1467.

Membrane No. 10.

Richard Clerk was vicar of Leigh at the date of this indenture. He is entered in the Valor (v. 220); and about 1550 answered, with his coadjutors, a visitation-call of bishop Birde. Their names are thus given: Dns Ric'us gelebronde cur' conduct. p D' Ric'um clerke Vio'; Dns Joh'es astleye ex stipendio Joh'is Urmiston armig'; Dns Rob'tus add'ton cap'nus Joh'is add'ton armig'; Dns Simon Bradshae conduct. p' Ric'um smyth et alios. The same vicar appears in the next visitation; and his name occurs in a deed at Chester, 1555. He died 1558 (Piccope MSS., x, 101, 158, 165; xvi, 235). About five years later there were 3,000 communicants; the parsonage, impropriate, being worth 300l. yearly, and the vicarage 20 marks. "A preacher non-resident" (Dom. Ser. Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590, the communicants were 2,000. The vicar, Mr. Eaton, was a preacher, but he was then resident in Cheshire, and his minister was "no preacher" (Lydiate Hall, p. 248).

Simond Bradshaye of Leigh, alias Pinnington, clerke, by his will, 27 October 1573, directs his body to be buried, either in the chancel of Leigh church, or else nigh his father's buriall. He mentions Roger ffeilden, vicar of Leigh; the glasse wyndowe nigh where my father was buried; Thomas Johnson, the parish clerke of Leighe, by whom, and by Fielden, the will is attested (Mr. J. P. Rylands's notes).

The name of vicar Clerke occurs in the fifth chapter of Froude's History of England, vol. i, pp. 468-9, ed. 1872, in an account of some depositions taken by the Earl of Derby touching slanderous and unfitting words uttered against King Henry VIII. and his new Queen, Anne, in the month of July 1535, a report of which the Earl sent up to London. Froude does not state, as was the case, that these depositions were taken at the town of Leigh, and that the witnesses, if not the offender himself, belonged to the same neighbourhood. The historian's source of information was the annexed letter, No. cxv, printed in Ellis's Original Letters illustrative of English History, first series, vol. ii, pp. 42-45, and taken from the original in the Chapter House at Westminster. A copy of the document was, however, kept by Sir Henry Farrington, the Earl's assistant in the business, which letter is now preserved in Miss ffarington's collection of MSS, at Worden; and it has already been given in abstract by Canon Raines in The Stanley Papers, pt. ii, p. 24 (vol. xxxi, Cheth. Soc.) In this way the document has come to be calendared in the Sixth Report of the Historical MSS. Commission, p. 444, by Mr. Horwood; but it has not been done without some inaccuracies in dates, &c. It is a document of some significance, having relation to the ecclesiastical charges which these inventories illustrate. In July, 1531, Henry VIII., after a union of twenty-two years, finally separated from his first wife, Queen Catherine. Archbishop Cranmer's sentence nullifying that marriage was given in May, 1533; but Henry's actual marriage with Anne Boleyn, which could no longer be honourably delayed, occurred about S. Paul's day (January 25), 1532-3. Angry discussions throughout the country followed on this important event, and much freedom of speech was indulged in. Differences of opinion created partisans; and there were persons in every parish who were unneighbourly enough to report to the Council treasonable words occurring in the conversation of friends. Froude says (vol. i, pp. 310, 365, and generally chap. iv, entitled "Church and State") that an abominable system of espionage was established throughout the country. Five months after the marriage a Proclamation was issued, and was affixed to the Church doors. It set forth that the Lady Catherine of Spain, heretofore styled the Queen of England, was not to be called by that title any more, but was to be called Princess Dowager, and so to be held and esteemed. Discontent hereupon vented itself in very rough language, the priests expressing themselves the most heartily. Some instances of this out-spokenness are quoted by Froude in connection with the northern and then very remote abbeys of Whitby and Furness. The monks were more alive than others to the issues involved, and the news of the proceedings at Court spread quickly from monastery to monastery. The earl of Derby who signs the letter, and who was at the time lord-lieutenant of Yorkshire, was the commissioner of these West Derby Inventories. His colleague, Sir Henry Farrington, was a zealous promoter of the views of Henry VIII. He was son of Sir William Farrington, and was connected with the household of the Earl of Derby, acting, as Canon Raines believed, as secretary to that nobleman. In 29 Henry VIII. he is called the King's farmer, and in 32 and 35 Henry VIII. he was Steward of the King's Lordship and Fee of Penwortham. He was afterwards one of the Commissioners for the Suppression of the Monasteries, and died at the end of 1549, aged 78.

Sir Richard Clarke, the first witness whose evidence was taken, was, in 1545-6, returned as a priest of Croston, which is the place meant in his deposition. He was chantry priest of S. Trinity there, and, as such, in 1553 received a pension of 2l. 14s. for life (Lanc. Chantries, p. 168). He seems to have been promoted to Leigh for his carriage in the present business, just about the time that the Vicarage was passing into lay hands. His age was 74 in 1548, about which time one of his name attended, with the clergy of Dean, one of Bishop Birde's visitations.

It does not appear where the "naughty priest," Sir James Harrison, was stationed. He is not found amongst the Lancashire priests in Henry VIII.'s Valor. The words which he spoke in reference to the King seem to mean that Henry's continuance as King should rest on his own conduct. "Bering," which is printed "bearing" by Froude, and "berying" (as if burying) by others, is the Anglo-Saxon word for behaviour. The last two witnesses, Summer and Clayton, walked with Harrison from "Perbolt," i.e., Parbold (which is three miles W.N.W. of Standish), to Eccleston, a distance of five miles. On this occasion Harrison, interested in the safety of his order and angry at the invasion of the sanctity of the sacrament of marriage, unbosomed himself more freely. It was, as Froude remarks, "treason, confident of success, and scarcely caring to conceal itself;" adding, in reference to the dark speech of Dykonson, who was probably a local prophet, that "Yorkshire was preparing for rebellion and 'the Pilgrimage of Grace.'" That rebellion broke out about two years after this clerical threat.

In 25 Henry VIII., William Dalton, perhaps the same "squyer" of these depositions, brought an action against William Wallis for tortious possession of title-deeds to lands and messuages in Croston, Mawdesley, and Bysham.

One error appears in Froude's abstract of this letter. He gives the testimony of the first witness thus: "Richard Clark deposeth that the said James Harrison reading the proclamation, said," &c. For reading the word hearing should be substituted, for it was the Vicar who read it, with the view as it seems of playing the part of the informer. The letter is as follows:

Pleas it your Highnes to be advertysed, that where as Sir William Fitzwilliam knyght on of your Counsullors and Tresorer of your moost honorable Howse, lately directed his severall Lettres unto us your humble subgetts and servants Edward Erle of Derby and Henry Faryngton Knyght, whereby we perceyve your graces pleasor is that a lewde and noghty [i.e., wicked] preist inhabytyng in thise partyes [parts], who hathe of late reported and spoken befor and in the audyence of certeyn persons sundry and diverse unfyttyng and sklaunderous words, aswell by [i.e., against, as in 1 Cor. iv, 4] your Highnes as by the Quenes grace, shuld not only be attached [s.e., arrested] and sent up to your Highnes, but also that we shuld in the accomplishement of your said pleasor take th'examynacions and saings of suche persons as were present and herd the same unfyttyng and sklaunderous reports and sayngs of the said preist in the premisses; and the same to send in wrytyng to your Highnes subscribed with our hands: We according to our bounden duties in the accomplishement of your graces pleasor, have called befor us suche persons whose names and deposicions hereafter do ensue; and the same persons did examyn upon ther othes at Loy [i.e., Leigh] in the Countie of Lancaster, the xth day of August in the xxvth yere of the reign of your noble Highnes, Sir Richard Hoghton, Sir Willm Leyland Knyghts, and Thomas Howcroft your servants and other of the Counsaill of the said Erle, beyng present with us. The number of the churchwardens in 1552, viz., five, had increased to six in 1641. The latter was the number in Gastrell's time, viz., one from each township. No Lithgoes, Mathers, or Partingtons appear on a list of names of the inhabitants in 1534-5, but one Gregory is found, and no less than twenty-seven Smiths. Of the latter, in 1641, there were upwards of sixty, one of them having an alias; and there were nine Lithgoes, two Gregories, ten Mathers, and seven Partingtons. The 1534-5 list of inhabitants of Leigh is a document of some value, and has an interesting relation to the parish register, which, beginning in 1559-60, is now being reprinted under the care of the vicar, the Rev. J. H. Stanning, M.A. The list occurs in the Ducky Lancaster Pleadings and Surveys of the reign of Henry VIII. (vol. iv, B 25; Cal., vol. i, p. 201), where there is (without date) a bill filed by Sir Thomas Boteler, knt., against certain persons who "assembled in the parish Churchy'd of Leygh and most riotous arrayed with swords staves billes and other weapons assaulted the undersheriff and other servants of plaintif who were there to execute a warrant and took Thomas Powmfrete from the said undersheriff and put them all in great dread & perill of their lives & from thence went to the house of one William Lynley in the said town of Leigh where the said sheriff tarryed about an hour during which time John Smyth William Choll Robert Lylling John Allered John Asteley and Richard Hamson at the town of Leigh by the command of John Atherton and Richard Atherton assembled themselves together & came with the said undersheriff which was then going with Edm'd Leche & Nicholas Hyndley unto W^m Leyland & made a riotous assault & put them in jeopardy of their lives And moreover at one or 2 o'clock the same day (Circumcision 26 Heary VIII., 1 Jan. 1534-5) the said Richard Atherton by the commandment of John Atherton & divers other persons whose names are expressed in the schedule annexed assembled themselves in the said town of Leygh rioutously, broke into the house of the said William Lynley and assaulted the under sheriff & others there And all which destroyed the peace of the said King &c. Praying &c."

The Schedule of 147 Names, which follows, supplies a valuable list of the grown-up male inhabitants of Leigh. From the character of the proceedings it may not be a full list of the parishioners. In 1641, when the entire grown-up male population was enrolled, there were nearly one thousand names set down.

The evidence of the parishioners is given at length; and from the extracts which follow we ascertain the reasons of their action.

Raffe Powmefrett (B. 25 c.) Answers & says that Richard Penketh being undersherif to Sir Thomas Boteler on the said Sonday mentioned in the said bill accompanied with a great number of persons came to the church of Leygh at that time a great number had assembled in the said Church to here devine service and then and there about sacre tyme of the masse in the said Church the said undersheriff did arrest Thos. Pomfrett Edmond Leche & Nicholas Hyndeley & others to the great disturbance of the hearers & after when the hey masse was done the undersheriff & his company led away his prisoners into the churchyard & thereupon Ralph came and demanded of the undersheriff for what cause he led away the said Thomas Pomfrett like a thief whereupon the undersheriff answered by the King's warrant & Bichard Atherton called upon the people to depart whereupon many did do so. And the undersheriff & Atherton with the prisoners adjourned to the house of the widow of Randelffe Mader in Leygh to drynke &c

Answers of Mathew Hameson Perce Walton & George Achowe (B 25 d) who say they are not guilty

Answer of Robert Abolton (B 25 e) who says that Thos Pomfrett was led by the Arms up and down the church like a thief & says he is not guilty of riot Answer of John Atherton Esq (B 25 f) who says he is not guilty and that the indictment is only the maliciousness of Sr Thos. Butler as he was not near the place at the time.

Answer of Rychard Atherton and George Igson (B 25 g) who say as the others do that the arrests were made in the Church and the adjournment made to drynke where he made merry. He went to the house of Sir W^m Leylond knt about 2 miles from the said place & dyned. He drew out his sword with three others and made attack &c

John Smythe W^m Choll & Robert Lyllyng answer (B 25 h) similar to the other defts. Among the various statements Robert Lyllyng says "Perceiving the seid sheriff and his company maliciously propensed for sauegard of his lyfe ranne awaye from him And incontinently after came again saying to Smythe & Choll lett us go forthe for I am sucre the sheriff hath nothing to do with me nor yett I with hym & thereupon passed through the Churchyard & as they came against the church porch the said undersheriff was laying awaite for Robert Lyllyng & cried take the theffe hold the theffe & whereupon for fear ran away and jumped over the wall followed by one Davy with his naked sword & cried stop the theffe."

Both Smythe and Choll appear to have been felled by the staves of the undersheriff's servants.

While lately taking notes for an account and catalogue of the small collection of old books in the old library of the parish school, the remnant of a bequest (about the year 1710) by Ralph Pilling, one of the head masters of the school, to his successors, I discovered an autograph of the eminent archbishop Cranmer, the prime mover in the ecclesiastical legislation with which this volume is dealing. The hand-writing is noteworthy on many grounds. The fac-similes of the archbishop's signature, found in various books, display a pretty wide diversity both as regards the style of writing and the abbreviation or fulness of the two words composing it; and yet it is seen, on a close study, that a family likeness runs through all. Some are in the cramped German text or engrossing hand, as in the examples in Gorham's Gleanings (p. 12), and Nichols's Autographs, 1829 (plate 11), which at a first glance have no apparent affinity with the Leigh autograph. But another class of Cranmer's autographs are in a running hand, and it is one of these (more cursive than that in Sims's Autographs, 1842) that occurs in the Leigh library. It is his episcopal signature, thus written: "Thomas Cantuarien"; and it is found on the top of a title-page of an 8vo copy of a translation of the Book of Proverbs, with a comment, by "that great clerk" Philip Melancthon. The title-page has been fac-similed on the accompanying plate. The volume, as is found by an imprint at the end of the first part, is dated 1525. There is a new title-page to the Annotations, thus: "Паро: | µla:, sive pro | verbia Solomo | nie filii Davidie, | Cum Adnotationibus | Philippi Melan- | cthonie. | Haganom, per Iohan | nem Secerium. | Cum Indice." Hagenoa, or Haguenau, now (since the late war) in German Alsace, north of Strasbourg, produced several books in the fifteenth century; and John Secer de Lancha, the printer of Melancthon's book, was one of the successors there of the printer Anselme (Deschamps's Dict., 599-600).

After considerable search I was enabled to identify the autograph with one facsimiled in the Catalogue of the Colfe Grammar School library at Lewisham, Kent, edited by W. H. Black, 1831. In this collection, it seems, there are two books with Cranmer's episcopal autograph on the title-pages, one of which books (Catal., p. 20) is Erasmus's Annotat. on the New Test., fol., Basle, 1527, and the other (p. 24) is Bucer On the Epistle to the Romans, fol., Strasburg, 1536, with a dedication to Cranmer himself, dated 8 Kal. April, 1536. It is the autograph in the latter folio which Mr. Black has fac-similed in his Catalogue, and it is the very same type of writing as that in the Leigh copy of Melancthon, the latter being proportionately smaller, and written, there is little doubt, about the same time, viz., about three years after Cranmer's accession to the see of Canterbury.

I am not sure whether certain marks in the Melancthon are not those of the archbishop, who we know was in the habit of marking his books when reading them, for he seldom read without a pen in his hand. In what way the book got into this obscure corner of England can never perhaps be ascertained
It seems clear that a partial dispersion of the prelate's books took place. Todd (Life of Cranner, vol. ii, p. 525) says that a great part of Cranmer's MSS., as well as his collection of printed books, were either embezzled during his imprisonment, or fell into the hands of his enemies and were dispersed; and that archbishop Parker recovered several of the former. Mr. Black could not explain how the two Colfe volumes escaped from Cranmer's library, which after his martyrdom, March 21, 1555-6, was forfeited to the crown, then passed into the possession of Henry, earl of Arundel, steward of queen Mary's household, who bequeathed them, in 1579, to lord Lumley's library, on whose death, in 1609, they were purchased by Henry, prince of Wales. On the death of the latter, in 1612, many of his books were sold, but the bulk went into the royal library, and so came to the British Museum, the books being marked with the archbishop's initials at the foot of the binding. The pedigree of the Leigh volume may in part be traced by other autographs in it. Shortly after the death of Cranmer the book appears to have come to the hands of one "F. Smallwood"; next, a friend of Pilling's, "Johannes Birchenhead me jure possidet anno Dom'i 1677. pret 3s."; still later, "Sum e Libris Radulphi Pilling Scholse Mancuniensis alumni, A.D. 1699. Ex Donis Johannis Birchenhead." In a later hand is the autograph of an idle scholar of Leigh school. In the ill-usage of several generations of schoolboys the preservation of this volume is due to its excellent binding of beech boards, formerly secured by clasps.

The book itself is pregnant with associations of its first possessor, who acquired it. we may suppose, out of admiration of Melancthon's moderation and learning. The autograph recalls the hand — the calm hand — which left its mark on the English Liturgy, as also the hand which recented -- "this unworthy hand!" And the volume directs the attention to the noble library of which it once formed part,- that collection which was always freely open to men of letters, to which Latimer resorted, and where Ascham met with authors which the two universities could not furnish. Strype relates (Momorials, Eccles. Hist. Soc., vol. iii, pp. 376-7) that the library of the reverend and learned prelate, who himself spent about three parts of the day in study, included the ecclesiastical writers of all ages, and he particularly refers to one of the archbishop's books, containing probably the very same form of autograph as that now described: "Another of his books I will mention, because it is now [1694] in possession of a reverend friend of mine near Canterbury; in which book the archbishop's name is yet to be seen, written thus with his own hand, Thomas Cantuariensis: and a remarkable book it is, which we may conclude the archbishop often perused, viz., Epistola et Historia Joannis Hus. Printed at Wittemberg, 1537."

Membrane No. 15. The inventory of Henry VIII.'s commissioners is alluded to at the end of the document.

The rich and important Rectory of Wigan was held by some men of influence. The celebrated Lynacre, the associate of Colet, More, and Grocyn, the restorers in England of the new learning, was appointed rector, 10 October 1519, by Thomas Langton, Esq. Erasmus (Epistola xiv) has commemorated the searching, deep, and refined judgment of Lynacre, who died 20 October 1524. He succeeded Richard Wyst (or Wiot), B.D., 1506-19, who, in that interval, was plaintiff in the Duchy Court in a civic matter (Cal. to Pleadings, vol. i, p. 219, and cf. 262). In 20 Henry VIII., Nicholas Towneley was clerk and parson of Wegane Church when he entered an action against Hugh Paige for contempt of the King's Court (vol. i, p. 139). Four years later Towneley, as "Administrator to the late Parson of Wygan," was in dispute with Geffrey Shevyngton, William Hasteley, curate of Wygan Church, Robert Chalton and others, as also with Sir Thomas Langton, Knight, about hay in the parsonage barn (vol. i, p. 217; cf. 153 and 158). In 23 Henry VIII. Sir Geffrey Page, clerk, is mentioned (vol. i, 146). On the death of Richard Langton, rector, Richard Kyghley succeeded, 24 March 1534-5, about which time his name occurs in the Valor, vol. v, p. 220; and cf. Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 245; Duchy Pleadings, vol. i, p. 164; and vol. ii, p. 64.

Syr Rauf Scott was probably curate to Kyghley, who died in 1543. A Raffe Scott, preist, was fined 240l. at Manchester in 1583-4 for twelve months absence from church, according to the statute (State Papers, Eliz., vol. clxvii, No. 40). Shortly before Kyghley's death the following names were returned at a visitation: Dns Rad'us Scotte, cur' conduct' per d'um Ric'um Kyghley, rect'; Dns Henricus grange, stipendiarius Rob'ti longton; Dns hugo Cokson conduct' per thoma' gerrard armig'um; Dns gilb'tus aspull.

The next rector was John Herbert, who paid his first-fruits 6 August 1543. Strype, in his Eccles. Memorials, mentions a presentation by the bishop of Chester, dated in "March 1550," to admit John Standish, D.D., to the parsonage of Wiggon in his diocese, void by the death of Mr. Herbert, late incumbent; but if this took effect, Dr. Standish did not long retain the rectory. In a visitation, August 1551, the rector's name is left blank; but Rad'us Scott and seven others appeared, viz: Dns Will'ms astleye, Dns hugo cokson cant', Dns Joannes gerrard, Dns gilb'tus aspull, Dns Ric'us Smith, who Thomas barnes, Dns henricus grange, and Dns Mattheus heve. paid first-fruits for the rectory 10 February, 5 Edward VI. (1550-1), was the rector at the time when this inventory was taken. He is named in the Duchy Pleadings, vol. i, pp. 260, 266, and vol. ii, p. 141; and he died in 1554-5. Richard Gerrard followed, in whose time (1 and 2 Philip and Mary) there was an enquiry into the title of the parsonage lands (vol. i, p. 277; and vol. ii, p. 154). To him succeeded (6 Aug. 1558) Bp. Stanley, whose curate Scott, in his absence, answered the visitation call of 1562. And both appeared in the next visitation (Piccope MSS., pp. xvi, 251-2; x, 101, 157, 164, 183; Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 246; Ath. Oxon., vol. i, 236; Lanc. Authors, p. 118; Cf. Jones's Popery Tracts, app., p. 4). In 2 Eliz., Thomas Stanley, clerk, Bishop of Man and of the Out Isles, and parson of the rectory or parish church of Wigan, and Sir Thos. Langton, knt., deputy steward to William Fletewood, high steward of Wigan Court, were in dispute with William Gerrarde, Administrator of Richard Gerrarde, clerk, late parson, and Richard More, mayor, and others, about the title of the parsonage to certain liberties (Duchy Pleadings, vol. ii, p. 217, and cf. 232, 267, 271, 382).

In the parish about 1563, and also in 1590, there were 3000 communicants. The preacher, at the former date, was "painefull" (Dom. Ser., Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590 the parson, Edw. ffleetewood, was a preacher, as also was another minister whose name is not given. At the two chapels of Hollande and Billing there were, at the last date, no preachers (Lydiate Hall, p. 248).

As to the churchwardens, one hundred years later there were but four grown up male persons of the name of Lowe in Wigan, and but one named Pennington.

In the account of John Birde, bishop of Chester, giving the result of the enquiry into the misappropriation of church ornaments, plate, bells, &c., in his diocese, 12 January 1548, it is said of Wiga' that James Anderton and Robert Chalon', the churchwardens, had sold iij^{tle} chales for viij^{ll} xviij^s ix⁴ "wich was bestowed towarde the payment off o' bellis bought off the Kyng." (Dom. Ser., Edw. VI., vol. iii, No. 4.) There was, in former days, a tradition at Wigan that one of the Holland bells came from the adjoining Priory. The present ring at Holland were cast at Gloucester in 1733.

Coloured Copes.—White copes were used on the more festive occasions, as on Christmas Day, Trinity Day, on the dedications of churches, &c.; Red, the colour of fire and of blood, was used on the days of the Apostles, Evangelists, and all Martyrs; Green, as being "jocundus atque confortativus," was used from Trinity Day to Advent throughout the entire summer, and on other occasions; Saffron-coloured copes were used on all confessors' days, &c.; Violet or Purple vestments on the first Sunday in Advent, the Rogation days, Lent, &c., this being the penitential colour; and Black for the commemoration of souls, or when the dead were in question. These particulars are taken from MSS. pontificals, according to the use of the church of Exeter, of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, quoted in the Pontifical of Chr. Bainbridge, archbishop of York, 1508-14, Surtees Society, vol. lxi, pp. 388-90.

Holland is more commonly called Up-Holland in contradistinction to Down-Holland which is in Halsall parish. The chapel is all that remains of the old priory of black monks, the lands of which had, 28 Henry VIII., passed into the hands of John Holcroft, Esq. John Port was prior there 21 Henry VIII. (Duchy Pleadings, vol. ii, p. 42). In Harl. MS., 604 (fol. 91), being "the Brevyate of the brieff Certificat vppon the newe Survey of the Religiouse houses within the Countie Palatyne of Lancastr given to the Kings highnes by Acte of P'lyment And within the case of Dissolution," of which the date seems to be about February 1538-9 (these lesser monasteries were given to the King about three years earlier, when a survey, hinted at here as the old survey, was taken),—the following particulars are given of Holland monastery in Wigan parish, Peter Prescote being prior: "The first value liiji iiji iiji Second value lxxviiji xij xid Bells, lede and Goods cxxxiji ij viijd Wodds worth to be solde xl¹¹ Debts owynge by the house xviij¹¹ xviij² x⁴ Religiouse P'sons v. Serv'nts and others havynge livyngs there xxvj. Th'offer for the Redemc'on of the seid house to be paid at days col¹¹ iiij⁵." The reference, as indeed the entry itself, is not correctly given in the Appendix (p. 14) of Browne-Willis's Mitred Abbeys. In 1 Mary, John Chadderton prosecuted George Ireland and Sir Thomas Benger, knt., for arrears of rent of the parsonage lands of Childwall parsonage, late belonging to the dissolved priory of St. Thomas the Martyr of Holland (Duchy Pleadings, vol. i, pp. 275-6).

Billing. This document supplies an early mention of the chapel of Billing, which, as it is not named in the Valor, must have been built between 1534-5 and the date of this inventory. In 31 Henry VIII. there was a petition before the Duchy Court, in which the vicar of Billing (not William Billing, as stated in the Calendar) charged James Roby and others with a disturbance of Divine Service at Billing (Pleadings, vol. ix; B 1 Cal., vol. i, p. 159). The vicar's complaint is too much damaged to be transcribed accurately. It seems to record the building of the chapel, by consent of the rector of Wigan (Kyghley), on account of the distance of Billing from the mother church. It proceeds to relate that service was accordingly held there "for a vertuose and godly entent, and for the eas of the people nere there adjoyninge"; that Iames Roby, one of the churchwardens, had collected and gathered to the use of the said chapel, from the worshippers, the sum of 7l.; and that this sum was delivered by Boby to one William Heyton, Esq., who wrongfully detained it, and in consequence "divine s'vice ministred wthin the seyd chappell is lykelie to be surseased & decayd for lake of payment of the p'sts wages ministrynge wihin the same." The vicar therefore prayed the court that, inasmuch as no rights, duties, nor laudable customs were withholden from the church of Wigan, it would direct the king's most honourable letters of privy seal to Heyton and Roby to pay the 7l. to the use and maintenance of the chapel. In the same reign (no date) John Wynstanley appeared against James Roby, reve and churchwarden, William Heyton and others, who were detaining moneys collected for the repairing of the ways to Byllinge chapel (Cal., vol. i, p. 220, and cf. 260). The decrees in these suits do not appear to be recorded.

In the Duchy Lancaster Pleadings (vol. v, no date, B. 2; Cal., vol. i, p. 291) is a petition which shews that a more serious hindrance to worship befel the parishioners. The document which follows is without date, but it belongs to Queen Mary's reign, and seems to follow the passing of the statute of 1553, by which religion was restored to that state in which Edward VI. found it on his accession. Sir Robert Rochester, to whom it is addressed, was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy 1 Mary (1553-4); and his successor, Sir Edw. Waldegrave, was appointed 4 and 5 Philip and Mary (22 June 1558). The subsequent decree is not to be found.

Membrane No. 15.

In 1534-5 Simon Matthewe, S.T.B., was vicar (Valor, vol. v, p. 220).

Rob'tus Brassey, a native of Bunbury, Cheshire, paid his first-fruits as vicar of Prescott 13 April, 32 Henry VIII. (1541), and held the living till his death in 1558. He and the following priests attended a visitation, 2 Edward VI.: Mr. Rob'tus brasse, vic'; Dns Joannes Webstare; Dns Ricus frodsh'm [of Wyndell chantry in 1549]; Dns Edwardus Garnett, cur'; Dns Thomas Jonson; Dns homfridus Cartwright; Dns henricus waynwright; Dns hugo Whitfeld; Dns henricus colleye; Dns Thomas longleye; Dns Rad'us Worsleye. William Whitlocke succeeded Brassey as vicar, being presented by the provost and scholars of King's college, Cambridge. In June 1552, the following vicars are mentioned in a tythe-case: Robert Harcamblen; Mr. Robert Noke (vicar about thirty-one years before 1552); Dr. Bonor; Mr. Simon Matthew (or Mr. Symonds). (Piccope MSS., x, 158, 164, 183; xvi, 245; Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 203; Chast., pp. 78-9; Gregson's Fragments, p. 174).

The "houseling" people of the parish, or those old enough to be communicants, were, in 1548, in number 1000 (Chant., p. 78). About 1563, as also in 1590, it was computed that the number was 4000. The parsonage, impropriate to King's college in Cambridge, was, about 1563, of the yearly value of 300l., the value of the vicarage being 100 marks. The preacher was insufficient (Dom. Ser., Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590 "the vicar, Mr. Mede, his minister," was a preacher. There was also a preacher at Rainford. Of the chapels of Farnworth and St. Ellens, it is said of the former that there was no preacher (Gibson's Lydiate Hall, p. 248).

As to this property, the commissioners took away a silver parcel-gilt chalice weighing 13\frac{1}{4}\text{oz.}, having received it from the hands of Sir Thomas Gerrard, one of the commission, by him received from Peter Eccleston, one of the wardens (Chant., p. 270). They also collected one chalice weighing 160z. with "le Garnisshynge" of a "Pix" parcel-gilt (elsewhere called "a lytyl boxe"), belonging to the same church, receiving it from the hands of the said Gerrard, by him received from Peter Lancaster, clerk (Ibid.) The official receipt for these two articles is given (Ibid., p. 282). Peter Lancaster, who is mentioned subsequently under Farnworth (pp. 83, 85), was, with one Ralph Lancaster, clerk, in dispute, temp. Henry VIII., with John Mody and Sir Thurstan Mody, clerk, all apparently of "Ekyston," i.e., Eccleston, for contempt of and resistance to the king's process of sub-pona (Cal. to Pleadings, vol. i, p. 208).

In the Duchy Records, I Edward VI., is a pleading of Edward, Earl of Derby, lessee of the provost of our Lady and S. Nicholas (i.e., King's College) in Cambridge, against Sir Thomas Gerrard, knt., in reference to the title to the rectory and parsonage of the parish church of Prescot, and the tithes and profits thereof (Cal. to Pleadings, vol. i, p. 223). Depositions were taken 4 Edward VI. (Ibid., vol. ii, p. 106, and cf. 361). Henry Holland and others were defendants in an action brought by Richard Assheton, 4 Edward VI., for trespass and asportation of tithes of grain and hay belonging to Prescote parsonage (Ibid., vol. i, p. 232).

The same number of wardens (four) held in Gastrell's day (vol. ii, p. 203). The only names of the churchwardens' families that appear in the early register are Quick and Woodfall. Thomas Quyck, son of Richard Quyck, was baptized 18th March 1547-8; and two persons of the name of Thomas Quick are mentioned 1548-1553. Thomas Salter and Sir Thomas Holt, knt., were defendants in a case brought in the Duchy Court by Richard Bold for forcible entry into land called Abbot's acre in Widnes Lordship (Cal., vol. i, p. 263). From the Parish Register we gather that, on 28th November 1551 (5 Edward VI.), "Mr. Richard Bold Esquire and Margaret Woodfall weare maried at a certain place in Bold called the Barrow h'ath." John Woodfall was a litigious person, for he appears in several cases in the Duchy Court from 4 Edward VI. to 10 Elizabeth (vol. i, pp. 247, 274, 282; vol. ii, pp. 167, 219, 356). Robert Woodfalle, 8 Elizabeth, was bailiff of Widnes, acting under Sir John Savage, knt., steward (vol. ii, p. 327); and Richard appears 9-10 Elizabeth (pp. 335) 356). John Woodfall and others, shortly after the date of the inventory under notice, were defendants against Roger Charnock, gentleman, of Gray's Inn, in a case of disputed title to lands on Widnes Moor (Ibid., vol. i, p. 293). The Ecclestons were an ancient family living in this parish in the township of that name. In the reign of Philip and Mary, John Tarbook and others, churchwardens of Prescot, claimed from Richard Smith, executor of Gilbert Latham deceased, and Thomas Eccleston, a legacy and debt for support of Prescot Grammar School (Cal., vol. i, p. 307).

Farnworth. Sir Baldweyn Bold was priest at Farnworth 17 Feb., 24 Hen. VII. (1508-9). A little earlier than the date of this indenture the curate was Richard Whitheade. In 2 Edward VI. (1547-8) the following were the clergy: Dns Thomas Jonson; Dns Ric'us White; Dns Petrus lancastr (Piccope MSS., x, 102, 158, 165) Rd. Wyte appears in the Valor, 1534-5 (Cal., vol. v, p. 220), as priest of Farnworth chantry. It would fall to the lot of one of the above parish-priests to receive into the church the child Richard Bancroft, afterwards the able and learned archbishop who obtained the Act of Parliament which put an end to the scandalous alienation of episcopal lands, and under whose supervision the authorized version of the Bible was prepared. "Which Famous Prelate," the careful Heylyn notes by the way, "was born at Farnworth in the county of Lancaster, baptized September 1544. His father was John Bancroft, gentleman; his mother, Mary Curwin, daughter of John brother of Hugh Curwin, bishop of Oxon; whose eldest son was Christopher, the father of Dr. John Bancroft, who after died Bishop of that See, Anno 1640" (Hist. Presbyt., edit. 1670, p. 347). Dean Hook in his Archbishops of Canterbury, new series, vol. v, p. 190, following Baines and other local authorities, erroneously placed Archbishop Bancroft's birth-place at the Farnworth near Bolton, which he seems to have visited (for he describes it) under that impression; but the place is correctly recorded in Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 212. The record of his baptism was first made public two or three years ago by Mr. William Brimelow of Bolton. The following entries, taken from the parish register, attest the accuracy of Heylyn's account of the prelate's parentage: Under 24 January 1541-2, "John Bancroft was married the same daie," viz., as Hugh Standysh. It is curious that, amongst these early entries, the names of wives are not given in several cases: the marriage of Richard Sherburne, Esq., 20th October 1539, is similarly incomplete. "May, 1542: Xp'fer Bancroft sone unto John Bancroft, bap. yo iith daie." "September, 1544: Ric' Bancroft sone unto John Bancroft, bapt. yo xixth day." "April, 1547: John Bancroft son to John Bancroft, bapt. yo ixth day." "August, 1548: John, the son of John Bancroft, buryed the same [i.e., 2nd] daye." "August, 1549: Jone, daughter unto John Bancroft, bapt. the same [xxivth] day." "February, 1551-2: Elizabeth, daugh'r unto John Bancroft, bapt. ye iijth." Up to the close of the century no other Bancroft names are entered. Christopher Bancroft, above-named, married Audrey Andrews; and their son John, who died bishop of Oxford in 1640-1, was born at Astell in Oxfordshire, about the year 1574 (Ath. Oxon., vol. ii, 893). From the Duchy Pleadings (Cal., vol. ii, pp. 123-5) we can recover the name of the severe schoolmaster under whom it is probable that Richard Bancroft was placed, viz., John Lister. In 2 and 3 Philip and Mary, Lister, during a sitting of the Court of the Fee of Widnes, assaulted one Henry Henryson as the latter was going to Kewerdley chapel, after mass at Farnworth church. Henryson, it seems, was with other jurymen on the north side of Farnworth church deliberating about the transfer of a tenement from the hands of Ralph Thomasson, clerk. To try the assault case another jury was formed, some of whom were akin to Henryson; and judgement was given against Lister, who put in sureties for the peace. The foreman would have bound Lister to a Fee Court, which Lister refused as being against the custom of the Lordship of Widnes; but he offered himself to be bound to the Halmote. Process, however, was awarded against Lister to the bailiff of Widnes to bring him to Halton Castle, there to remain until the pleasure of Sir John Savage, knt., steward of the Lordship of Widnes, should be known. It would appear that Lister escaped from the bailiff; but the servants of Sir John Savage afterwards laid in wait for him in a sheepcote, and took him as he was going to Farnworth church to teach his scholars; and by violence brought him to Halton Castle, where he remained prisoner nine days. A royal writ of Corpus cum causa to the constable at Halton delivered him from the castle, and the Earl of Derby sent for him. Accordingly he went thence over the water to the Earl of Derby in Lancashire, where interrogatories, on behalf of the Duchy, were put to him about the rights and customs of Widnes court. Lister, together with Dame Margaret Bolde, and John Rathebon, priest, were, in the same court, charged with detaining title-deeds claimed by Richard Bolde (vol. i, p. 291; cf. 307).

The following priests, &c., occur in the old register. In a large hand: "July, 1548: St Thomas Johnson, priest, buried the xxth daye." "June 1552: St Rychard Bowre, priest, buried ye xviijth daie." "March, 1553-4: Sir John Tyllysley, parson, bur' ye xvijth day." In 1562 Thomas Hill (buried 15 May 1566) was curate. Sir Thomas Hankinson, curate of Farnworth, was buried 11 March 1583-4. This is inserted in old English under the year 1563: "William Sherlock, sonne of Robert Sherlock of Sutton, baptized at the church of Prescott the xvth day of June 1563; and nowe curat of Farnworth, 1598." Sherlock, who was buried at Farnworth 26 March 1641, was the transcriber of this register, which he copied from an older register, beginning November, 1538, and extending up to October, 1598. At the end is this memorandum: "Edward, Earl of Derbie, dyed the xxiiijth day of October, in the yeare of our Lord God, 1572."

There are four wardens given as the usual number for Farnworth by Gastrell (Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 210).

The value of various ornaments of the chapel was assessed at 21s. 1d. (Chant., p. 276). When Parker, the official collector of the goods inventoried by this commission of 6 Edward VI., rendered his account, he claimed to have been overcharged 8l. 16s. 11d. for the price or value of different ornaments belonging to the chapel of Farnworth, because that King Edward, by warrant dated Westminster 30 March 1553, in the seventh year of his reign, ordered that the commissioners should take away all the ornaments belonging to the said chapel according to the bill indented with Robert Brassy, vicar of Prescott, Thomas Eccleston, Thomas Parr, Henry Halsall, Richard Eltonhede, and Henry Holland, of the parish of Prescott, or four or less of them, taking from them sufficient security for the safe custody of the same, to the use of the King, until his good pleasure should be further determined, as appears in the said warrant annexed to the account, viz., in payment of the said sum on account of the said warrant (Chant., p. 279).

In the Duchy of Lancaster Pleadings, 3 Edward VI., vol. v, S. No. 12 (Cal., vol. i, p. 245), is the following petition about the tortious possession of church plate:

Richard Bolde and Miles Gerarde, informants for the King and Queen, 2 and 3 Philip and Mary, charged John Woodfall, one of the wardens of the chapel of Farneworth, with the embezzlement and detention of "a Rancke of Iron used for Lights before the Holy Sacrament in Farneworth chapel." Depositions were ordered to be taken (Ducky Pleadings, vol. ii, p. 178). Amongst the depositions, in reference to this charge, the following questions are on record (Miscellaneous Vol. xx, R. 23; Cal., vol. ii, p. 205):

S. Helens. There is no earlier mention of this chapel in Gastrell than 1613 (vol. ii, p. 206). It is named in Lanc. Wills in 1594 (vol. iii, p. 120).

The family of the Parrs of Kendal were, about this time, lords of the manor of Parr, two miles north-east of S. Helens, in this parish. Sir Thomas Parr, master of the wards and comptroller to Henry VIII., had three children: a son, who became Earl of Essex and Marquis of Northampton; a daughter, Katherine, who became the unfortunate Queen of Henry VIII.; and another daughter, Anne, who married William, Earl of Pembroke. To this same family also belonged Richard Parr (1592-1663), bishop of Man, one of Fuller's Lancashire Worthies (p. 112). Baines's Lanc., vol. ii, p. 713; Sir G. Duckett's Ducketiana, pp. 24, 154; Gregson's Fragments, p. 208. Members of the family still resided at Parr hall, at Parr, Latham, &c. (Cal. to Pleadings, Duc. Lanc., vol. i, pp. 175, 216, &c.). Richard Parr, in 1 Edward VI., is plaintiff in a case of trespass and dilapidation of a messuage and appurtenances at Parr (vol. i p. 228); and 4 Edward VI. he is defendant with Sir Thomas Gerrard and others in a disputed title to lands at Parr, Latham, and Wyndleshay (p. 236).

Roger Mason, canonio', occurs as vicar in 1534-5, when also he was in receipt of a pension of 6l. 13s. 4d. out of the monastery of Burscough (Valor, vol. v, pp. 222-3). He seems to have succeeded a vicar named Thomas Mason. His will is dated 12 May 1557. In it he describes himself as clarke, now vicar of Huyton; and it is attested by Sir Ed. Lowe, Sir George Williamson, Sir John Dorbie, Sir Gilbert Shrilacies. At a visitation a few years earlier he appeared, together with the following: Dns Will'us p'scott; Dns Georgius Williamson; Dns Thomas robinson; Dns Rob'tus standish; Dns homfridus plu'ton; Dns Edwardus lowe; Dns Will'ms Chaln'. Edmund Lowe, presented by the crown in 1558, attended, as vicar, a visitation in 1562; and he is mentioned as vicar (called S' Edward lawe) in the will of William Torbook of Torbook, Esq. (Piccope MSS., x, 102, 159, 165; xvi, 233; Wills, vol. i, p. 75; Chant., pp. 93 seq.; Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 178).

"Theare was within the p'ish of Hiton S' Robert Standishe and S' Wylliam Prescote and they dyed bothe in one yere whiche ys eyghtene yeres past or theareaboutes and they had penc'ons the valewe thereof wee knowe not" (Bishop Chaddertou's return, I April, 16 Eliz., on Stipends and Pensions, Special Commissions, No. 3258). This pension, which was of 13l. 6s. 8d., was in respect to Wynwyk's chantry in Huyton church (Valor Eccles., vol. v, pp. 222-3).

In 3 and 4 Philip and Mary, Sir Brian Brereton, knt., tenant of the parsonage lands, proceeded against one Margared Easthed for illegal entry and tortious possessions of the parsonage heaths, glebe lands and appurtenance of Huyton (Cal., vol. i, p. 183); and the same lands, &c., were in dispute, 6 Eliz., between the knight and Edward Braddil, as the King's receiver, and as servant to Cuthbert Scotte, D.D., bishop of Chester, and the Queen's tenant (Ibid., vol, ii, p. 277).

About 1563 there were 1500 communicants at Hiton. Parsonage impropriate 500 marks; vicarage 20 marks; no preacher (Dom. Ser., Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590 Hiton is described as impropriate to the Duchie portion. The vicar was no preacher still. There were 500 communicants (Rev. T. E. Gibson's Lydiate Hall, p. 248).

There were still three churchwardens in Gastrell's day (vol. ii, p. 179). The name Gorsuck was derived from the place of that name between Halsall and Scarisbrick. See Lydiate Hall, p. 254. An Arthur Gorsuch of Kirkdale appears 17 Henry VIII. Besides Scarisbrick (or Scarsbryge) the name occurs at Walsh Whittle and Northmeales (Duch. Cal., vol. i, pp. 210, 225, 232, 255, 266; vol. ii, pp. 68, 193); as also in the Farnworth Register, spelled Gorsich. The Mercer family was seated further north; but they occur in West Derby hundred (Ibid., vol. i, pp. 157, 207).

The collector, Parker, received from the commissioners 7l. 16s. 4d. for articles belonging to the church of Huyton (Chant., p. 271); and 7s. 8d. for the Rodestock (Ibid., p. 273).

The following commission, 20 May 1555, to survey the chancel of Huyton church, and the certificate of the commissioners, 3 Oct., are amongst the Duchy of Lancaster Pleadings (vol. xviii, R. 4; Cal., vol. ii, p. 189):

Membrane No. 12.

In 1534-5, according to the Valor (vol. v, p. 222), Robert Greves was vicar, and had been there from 1514. John Aynsdale held the living at the date of this inventory, when also the following priests were in the parish: Dns Ric' greues (mortuus); Dns Ric'us Norres; Dns henricus blackamore; Dns Kpoferus yrland; Dns thomas plombe. Wm. Crosse attended a visitation as vicar soon afterwards (Piccope MSS., xvi, 225; x, 102, 159, 165; Chant., p. 99).

About 1563 the parish of Childwell had 2000 communicants. The parsonage impropriate to the Bishop of Chester was valued at 300l., the vicarage being 20 marks. No preacher (Dom. Ser., Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590 the vicar was found to be no preacher, the communicants being reduced in number to 600 (Lydiate Hall, p. 249).

The parsonage formerly belonged to the priory of St. Thomas at Holland. After the dissolution the rents, &c., were often in dispute (Ducky Cal., vol. i, pp. 275-6; vol. ii, p. 152). The following tithe-barns are named in one of the documents: Mych Wolton barn, Lyegh barn, Garstan barn, Halebanck barn, Hale barn, and Wartrie barn (Ibid., p. 153). There are notes concerning this rectory in Harl. MS. 2071, No. 52; and in the same Harl. MSS. (No. 2176, art. 23) is an indenture made 18 April 1603, whereby Richard Vaughan, bishop of Chester, for a certain sum of money, demised to James Anderton, Esq. (for the term of some other persons' lives), the rectory, parsonage, and parish church of Chidwall, in co. Lancaster, parcel of the dissolved monastery of Holland, and now parcel of the bishopric of Chester, at the annual rent of 57l. 11s. 8d.

Two wardens is the number given by Gastrell (vol. ii, p. 166). Of the two here named James Plombs held a messuage formerly belonging to the Norris chantry in this church (Chant., p. 99).

In 1548 Bishop Birde, in his enquiry after misappropriation of church goods, reported that there had been sold at Childwall by William Crosse and others, churchwardens, a chalice for xls "wich was bestowed on o' bellis."

Sir William Norris of Speke, here alluded to, entered a pedigree at Flower's 1567 Visitation (p. 84), from which it appears that his second wife was Anne, daughter of David Middleton of Chester, gent. Cf. Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 167. He died to Eliz. (Cal., Inq. post Mort., p. 43). In 26 Henry VIII. Laurence Ireland and others prosecuted him for an assault (Duchy Cal., vol. i, p. 151); and in the following year, he and his wife Anne, late wife to Thomas Seyton, prosecuted Margaret, Marchioness of Dorset, and others, about some property in north Lancashire (vol. i, p. 195). He was also engaged in litigation concerning his property in this parish or near it, 29 Henry VIII. to 4 Eliz. (vol. i, pp. 155, 307; vol. ii, pp. 215, 230, 243). In Harl. MS. 1997, No. 12, is a declaration, 9 June 1563, of the descent of William Norres of the Speke, knt.; by him compiled and put forth to remain for a testimony and record of truth, to the end his children and heirs might read and understand the same, according to that which he had heard and found, either by writing, words, witnesses, evidences, or other ways. Of. Lanc. Fun. Certifs. He was a friend of Cardinal Allen's (Lydiate Hall, p. 186; and cf. p. 195).

Hale. In Gastrell's time there was one warden and one assistant (vol. ii, p. 170). In one of Randle Holmes's MSS. a paper is copied, called A true and just Presentment by Robert Rondle, chappel-warden, and William Stevensonne, sworneman, for the chappell of Hale, of all things belonging to their office & duty, according to their charge (Harl. MS. 2174, No. 3).

There were two bells here weighing 7 cwt., at 120 lb. per cwt., which were taken away, their value being 5l. 5s. (not 4.5s.) The ornaments were of the value of 4s. 6d. (Chant., pp. 273, 276).

Garston. The orthography of this chapelry is very perplexing from its similarity to Garstang in Amounderness.

The commissioners took away one silver parcel-gilt chalice, 6\frac{1}{2}oz.\square The ornaments were valued at 16d. (Chant., pp. 268, 276). The chapel soon fell out of repair, and for some generations was disused (Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 169).

John Plymmer (i.e., Plumber) was an active dealer in the metals taken from the religious houses. He appears in the Treasurer's accounts of the Dean and Chapter of Chester in connection with the following payments:

Unester in connection with the following payments:
"1576. To John Plim'er for the exchange of 104" of Leade vs ijd

It is presumed that Plimmer must have died before 1591, for in that year the following entry is in the same accounts:

Ric'us Gwent, clerious, paid his first-fruits as rector 17 January, 27 Henry VIII. (1535-6), succeeding Edward Molyneux, who was rector at the date of the Valor (vol. v, p. 221). The latter as clerk, parson of Walton Church, temp. Henry VIII., appeared against Thos. Baure for illegal taking of tithes of lambs, wool, mortuaries and tithe-fishing (Cal., vol. i, p. 210, and cf. 174). Anth. Molyneux, D.D., succeeded, paying his rectorial first-fruits 4 Aug., 35 Henry VIII. (1543), cf. Piccope, x, 165; Lanc. Wills, vol. ii, p. 263. He was one of the Worthies of Fuller, who, quoting from a MS. of Mr. Roger Dodsworth, says that he was "a famous preacher about Henry the Eights time, descended of the house of Sefton in the county of Lancaster, builded the church at Sefton anew, and houses for schools about the churchyard, and made the great wall about Magdalen Colledge in Oxford" (§ Lancashire, p. 120; cf. Chant., p. 115). To his god-son, Mr. Anthony Molyneux, he bequeathed half his books of divinity, and all his "sermonds written of my awne hand, both Englysshe sermonds and sermonds in Laten."

As vicar of Walton, Thomas Allen paid first-fruits 3 July, 4 Edward VI. (1550). An earlier vicar, named Thomas Norres, occurs in the Valor (vol. v, p. 221, also chantry-priest of Halsall, p. 224; Chant., p. 115; and in Piccope MSS., x, 102, and cf. 159), being mentioned in a deed at Chester, April 1539 (xvi, 269; and cf. x, 102). About the time of the above inventory, the following elergymen answered a visitation call: Dns thomas norres, vio'; Dns Ra'd'us haworth; Dns Rio'us frodsh'm; Dns Will'ms colleye; Dns homfridus crosse; Dns Joannes fynche; Dns Rob'tus fazakerley; Dns Will'ms More; Dns Joannes hurdis; Dns thomas ofenden; Dns hugo wolfenden; Dns Rob'tus bolton (x, 160).

In 1563 or thereabouts, in Bishop Downham's time, John Fynche being vicar, there were in Walton 4000 communicants, when the parsonage was valued at 300l. "No p'acher no Res." (Dom. Ser., Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). Robert Halsall, clerk, vicar of Walton, by his will, 20 February, 14 Elizabeth (1571-2), bequeathed 40s. to Walton church, and 6s. 8d. each to Darby and Formby chapels. In 1590, Dr. Chadderton being bishop, 4000 communicants were reported here, and in the three chapelries. Neither the parson, Alex. Molinex, nor the vicar, Peter Hay, were preachers (The Rev. T. E. Gibson's Lydiate Hall, p. 249).

Gastrell notes only one warden and one assistant (vol. ii, p. 224).

Akin, to this pronunciation of wolestidde, also found in the Maghull inventory, is ulsted in the church-goods of Herts. (Cussans, p. 114), which also give it in the form wrosted (p. 117). The statement that the material took its name from Worstead in Norfolk is open to question. Might not the word be in origin wool-stead = made of wool, differenced by a warp of R having crept into it? It seems natural to suppose that the place took its name from the material. Cf. Shuttleworth Accounts, pp. 512, 1129.

In the churchwardens' accounts of the parish, under the year 1744, there is a payment of 1l. 1s. 4d. for exchanging a communion cup.

The present bells, six in number, were recast at Rudhall's foundry in 1736, in part from the old bells, which weighed 23\frac{1}{23} owt.

In one of the Ince-Blundell deeds Nich', cler' de Lyv'pool, occurs May, 1401. In 1534-5, the date of the Valor (vol. v, pp. 221-2), the following clerks served in the four chantries in the chapel of St. Nicholas (the patron-saint of sailors and schoolboys): Thomas Rowley, Humfridus Crosse, Ric'us Frod[s]ham, and Radulphus Haworth (or Haward); for the three latter of whom, cf. Chant., pp. 79, 80, 84, 85, 87, 89. In 2 Edward VI. Richard Wrightington was plaintiff, and Edmund Gee and others, the Mayor and Burgesses of Liverpool, defendants, in a case of tortious possession of chantry lands and tenements belonging to Lyverpole chantry (Cal. to Pleadings, vol. i, p. 231).

The chantry of St. Catherine was founded by Sir John Cross, who became parson of an old London church called St. Nicholas Shambles, or St. Nicholas-en-le-Flech, or Flesshamoll; and whose Will, dated 10 May 1515, was as follows (Ducky Lanc. Depositions, Philip and Mary, vol. v, M 3):

Master Vane Thomasson was curate of Liverpool in 1564 (Chant., p. 92). There was, in 1590, a preacher at "Litherpoole als' Lerpoole," being one of ten preachers at that time in the West Derby hundred (Rev. T. E. Gibson's Lydiate Hall, p. 249). This was probably Mr. Carter, or Hugh Jannion who occurs in October 1591.

In 1641-2 there were two wardens. In 1675 one warden and one assistant (Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 192).

As the result of this commission the collector, Parker, received from the commissioners 33s. 4d., the price of one silver pix formerly belonging to St. Nicholas's chapel (Chant., p. 271). The building called the chapel of the Blessed Mary de le Key was sold for 20s. (Ibid., pp. 38, 277-8).

The title to some messuages and 30 acres of land, part of the lands of the chantries, were also in dispute in 1 Mary, being unsuccessfully claimed by Richard Walker, Randle Smythe, Alexander Garnette, Robert Aspes, Richard Rose, Thomas ffayre-clough, and Richard Raynsfurthe, and others, 10 March 1552-3, against William Mullyneuxe, who became farmer of the same in 1551 by vertue of Letters patent granted to Sir Richard Molyneux, Knt., by the name of Richard Molyneux, Esq. (Cal., vol. ii, p. 136.)

This document supplies an early date to the "ancient chapel," as it was termed a century later. The name (from deor, meaning any wild animal, as in Shakespeare), bestowed by the Danes upon their settlement in the centre of a vast forest, gave the appellation to the Hundred; and it was called West Derby, to distinguish it from the Derby of the Midlands.

There was one warden in Gastrell's time (Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 226). A Robert Mercer of the lordship of West Derby was concerned in a case in the Duchy Court versus William Mercer and others (Cal., vol. i, p. 159; and cf. vol. ii, pp. 23, 329, 437). The chapel was valued at 33s. 4d. (Chapt., p. 277).

An interesting paper upon what little is known of the history of this chapelry is to be found in the Transactions of the Historic Society, vol. vi, pp. 43 seq. The name betrays its early christian origin, and also indicates that it was a district occupied by the Danes. S' Peater Jackson was the priest here in 1568. "No preacher" was reported here in 1590 (Lydiate Hall, pp. 211, 249).

The commissioners took away a parcel-gilt chalice. The ornaments were sold for 12d., and the chapel for 20s. (Chant., pp. 268, 276, 277).

There was a Commission of Enquiry from the Duchy Court, 6 Edward VI., arising out of a dispute between Sir Thomas Gerrard, knt., and Richard Myddleton, tenants in coparcenary, and Richard Molyneux, steward of the King's manor of Derbye; and depositions were taken concerning Molyneux's title to the Moor Moss and turbary called Symond's Woodde; and therein particularly of the grant by King Henry VII. to Sir William Molyneux, knt., father of the defendant, and of the boundaries between the Lordship of Kirkeby and Symondswoodde from Ellarcarre to Mossebarrowe (vol. ii, p. 115). Other interrogatories were taken a few years later (vol. i, p. 277; vol. ii, p. 123).

John Pasmyth, early in the reign of Henry VIII., occurs as an inhabitant of Derby-cum-Thyngwall paying 111d. for his lands towards a fifteenth then collected. A William Norres is upon the same roll (The Norris Papers, p. 2).

The following persons attended the Episcopal Visitation in 1551: M'r Anthonius Mollenex, rect'; Dns Thomas Kyrkebe; Dns hugo Whitfeld; Dns Robtus ballerte; Dns Willms forstar; Dns Robtus p'kenson; Dns Thomas bochert; Dns henricus fazakerleye (Piccope, x, 159). In 3 Edward VI., Thomas Kyrkbye, clerk, of Sefton, was a party in a duchy enquiry directed against Richard Raynshawe, receiver of the late dissolved colleges and chantries in Lancashire, and John Carryll, attorney-general of the duchy, who claimed some messuages, lands, &c., in its neighbourhood (Cal., vol. ii, p. 102). Anthony Molyneux, who is alluded to under Walton (anted, p. 95), succeeded, at Sefton, Edward Molineux, appointed 1510 or 1511, and who is named in the Duchy Calendar (vol. i, pp. 146 bis, 174; vol. ii, p. 21), and in the Valor (vol. v, p. 223). As parson of Sephton, Edward appears as one of the executors of Thomas, second Earl of Derby (Collins's Peerage, edit. Brydges, vol. iii, p. 69). In a deed without date, of the reign of Henry VIII., Brian Morcroft, priest, advanced a claim against Thomas Kyrkeby, priest, and Richard Smith, clerk, parson of Bury, representatives of Sir Edward Molyneux, clerk, deceased, and parson of Sefton, the matter being a debt upon obligation as surety for the deceased to the prior of Burscough (Cal., vol. i, p. 209). Edward Molineux probably died about 1545; for in 37 Henry VIII. (1545-6) Thomas Kyrkeby, priest, claimed, against Richard Smyth and Thomas Mosoke, the administration of the goods and chatels of Sir Edward Molyneux, clerk, under Letters ad Colligendum from the archbishop of Canterbury (Cranmer), detained by the official of Chester (Ibid., p. 182). Gastrell (Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 216) notes a successor in 1557, presented by Sir Richard Molyneux, who was Robert Ballard, above-named, instituted 2 September that year on the death of Anthony Molineux. Ballard appeared at a visitation in 1562, together with Forstar, Fazakerley, Thomas Williamson and Jac. Arven (Piccope MSS., x, 165).

Sir Henry ffasakerley, who retained one of the vestments, is named above. Robert Fizackerley, who was incumbent of Molyneux's chantry in the chapel of Walton in 1548 (Chant., pp. 80, 82; Piccope MSS., x, 160, 165), died about 1565 and was buried in the parish of Sephton. He was described as "Sir Robert ffazakerley, a chauntrie priest at Walton" (Special Commissions, 16 Elizabeth, No. 3258). Sir Edward ffazakerley appears at the end of the will of Anthony Molyneux, rector of Sefton.

In 1563 there were 2000 communicants. A preacher, non-resident (Dom. Ser., Elizabeth, vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590 the number of the communicants was the same. The parson was Dean Nutter, also parson of Aughton and Bevington; but though a preacher himself, his minister was not (Gibson's Lydiate Hall, p. 249).

There were two wardens in Gastrell's day (vol. ii, p. 218).

The earliest date given to Crosby chapel in Gastrell's notes is 1619 (vol. ii, p. 220). The ministers of the chapel, as such, never entered their names at the visitation. It was under the charge of the Rectors of Sefton. In the reign of Henry VIII. (no date) the tenants of Magna Crosby were in dispute with Sir Edward Molyneux, clerk, about the right of turbary, warren, and timber in this parish (vol. i, p. 186). The same tenants, 24 Henry VIII., defended their rights of building in the precincts of Crosby town (vol. i, p. 203). In Harl MS., 2176, No. 52, is a verdict given at Wigan, dated 16 July 1629, touching the misemployment of a stock of money given toward the maintenance of a minister serving in a chappel at Crosby. The account of the finding of coins at Little Crosby is given in MS. 1437, No. 8.

The Commissioners of this indenture took away a parcel-gilt chalice, weighing 7½ oz. The chapel ornaments were valued at 16d., and the building itself at 30s. (Chant., pp. 268, 276-7).

Alter is the car (or close), or else carr (fortress), of the river Alt, and is sometimes written Actar. The township formerly belonged to Merivale abbey, co. Warwick; and in 21 Henry VIII. the abbot William, and his tenants, were in dispute with Thomas Halsall, lord of the manor of Down-Holland, and his tenant, about the rights of turbary, and the boundaries on the Mosses of Alteker and Down-Holland (Cal., vol. ii, p. 42). The lands of the dissolved monastery were afterwards (from 8 Eliz.) in dispute between William Ireland, who claimed by conveyance from his father, Laurence Ireland, for term of years, and Sir Richard Molyneux, knt., claiming by conveyance from Francis Molyneux, son and executor of Robert Molyneux, lesses for years (vol. ii, p. 327, and of. 347, 364, 378, 394; vol. iii, pp. 8 seq; Lydiate Hall, p. 32).

Richard Halsall was appointed rector 12 April 1513; he was still rector in 1534-5 (Valor, vol. v, p. 244); and was one of the executors of Thomas, second Earl of Derby, being called parson of Halsall (Collins' Peerage, edit. Bridges, vol. iii, p. 69). In 4 Edward VI. he was in dispute with Edward Holme concerning the title to the church lands of Maghell in right of Halsall parsonage (Cal., vol. i, p. 239; and of. vol. i, pp. 278, 298; vol. ii, p. 155). About the date of the present inventory he attended a visitation with the following assistants: Dns henricus halsall; Dns Joannes hesken; Dns Jo'hes Chetham; Dns Joannes p'cott, cur'; Dus Thomas mollenex (marked morteus). Piccope MSS., x, 160, xvi, 229; cf. Lanc. Chant., pp. 117-18. He was one of the wealthy Lancashire rectors. By his will, proved in 1563, he bequeathed to the church one fair chalice, double gilt, value 41. 13s. 4d., weighing 21 oz. (Wills, vol. ii, pp. 38-9). In 6 Elizabeth, James Halsall, claiming by lease from Richard Halsall, clerk, above named, with the consent of the patron, claimed certain tithes and the advowson and patronage of Halsall church, against Cuthbert Halsall, clerk (then parson of Halsall), Gylbert Halsall and Edmund Hulme. claiming by conveyance from Sir Thomas Halsall, knt., Thomas Ireland and others, cofeoffees (Cal., vol. ii, p. 288). Henry Halsall was, in 1534-5, chantry-priest of the chantry in Halsall church, founded by Henry Halsall, Esq., and Henry Molenex, chaplain (Valor, vol. v, p. 224). His death is noted in the special commission 3258: "S' Henry Halsale a chauntrye priest dyed at Halsale Anno D'n'i 1561 and had a penc'on of 3l. 4s. 4d. [Browne-Willis, vol. ii, p. 107] p'r ann'."

In the 22 Henry VIII. Thomas Halsall, and the tenants of Halsall, appeared in the Duchy Court against Thomas Kyrkeby, priest, on a charge of extortion for spiritualities (Cal., vol. i, p. 144); and, in the same reign (no date), Kyrkeby appeared against Thomas Halsall and others, for assault and interruption of church service (Ib., p. 207).

About 1563 (George Heaketh being rector) there were 1500 communicants. The value of the parsonage was 2001., "whereof the Parson hath by corrupcon but 3011 no p'acher" (Dom. Ser., Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1590 the communicants, including those of Melling and Maghull, were 2000, but still the same parson was "no preacher" (Gibson set anted, p. 249).

Of Lydiate Hall, and the adjoining domestic chapel of St. Katherine, which is in this parish, the Rev. T. E. Gibson has recently published a valuable history, which deals with the chief families of that neighbourhood, and with the persecution of the Roman Catholics in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, based for the main upon family documents. In one of the upper rooms of the hall are some panels upon which have been engraved five of the wives of Henry VIII., Edward VI., and an elderly man, supposed to be Sir Thomas More, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 1526-9. St. Katherine's was a private domestic chapel of the Ireland family of Lydiate.

There is an elegant little chalice of Gothic design preserved at Lydiate chapel.

In Gastrell's day there were two wardens: one chosen by the rector, the other by the Lord of Halsall, to represent Down Holland (vol. ii, p. 173).

Maghull, as it is now written, being a chapel of ease under Halsall, the priests of the latter are only named in the early visitations. In 5 Edward VI. Edmund Holme, who belonged to the family which held Mogholl manor, prosecuted Richard Halsall, clerk, and others, for forcible entry and tortious possession of messuages and lands in Mogholl, destruction of timber and detention of title deeds (Cal., vol. i, p. 255); and in the same year Holme was in litigation with one James Halsall for forcible entry and tortious possession of a barn and lands in Maghull in right of Halsall church (Ibid.). Harl. MS. 2142, No. 14, consists of extracts from the deeds of Mr. Maghull, of which divers relate to the family of Molyneux.

The chapel was valued at 30s. (Chant., p. 277). Richard Halsall above named bequeathed 20s. for repairing it.

As to the wardens, persons of the name of Molyneux in this neighbourhood are frequently found in the Duchy Pleadings. John Mollyneux, 1 and 2 Philip and Mary, prosecuted Edmund Holme and others for disturbance of right of turbary at Magehull Moss (vol. i, p. 279; and cf. vol. ii, p. 366; vol. iii, pp. 67, 510). Cf. Lydiate Hall, p. 209.—Edmund Barton appeared in a case 16 Elizabeth (vol. iii, p. 20).

In 1 and 2 Philip and Mary, Richard Halsall, clerk, parson of the mother church of Halsall, claimed certain lands in the parish from Roger Charnocke and John Norbury, lessees of the King and Queen's subjects under the Duchy Seal. Depositions were taken and a return made, stating that no witness or other proof was brought before them on behalf of the defendants; and the depositions on Halsall's behalf shewed that the former incumbents of Halsall were seized of and were entitled to the premises in dispute (Cal., vol. ii, p. 155). Halsall left 40s. for the repair of the chapel.

The commissioners took away a parcel-gilt chalice of silver weighing 60z. The chapel was valued at 26s. 7d., and the ornaments at 12d. (Chant., pp. 268, 276, 277).

Membrane No. 20. Aughton was otherwise called Acton or Haughton.

There was a family of the name of Sterkey living in Aghton at this time. See Cal.

Duck. (vol. i, pp. 197, 289; and vol. ii, p. 76), where John Sterkey is plaintiff, and Sir Henry Letherbarow, priest, defendant, in a title to lands, &c., under the will of David Griffith. A messuage, later in the occupation of Richard Leatherbarrowe, deceased, was, 7 Elizabeth, claimed by John Starkie (claiming by grant from his father, John) from David Letherbarrowe, who claimed under the will of his father, Richard (vol. ii, p. 315).

Brian Morecroft was presented to the rectory 14 July 1528, and his name occurs in the Valor, 1534-5 (vol. v, p. 223), where he is also called "in decretis Bachalarius." In a survey taken soon after the dissolution of Whalley Abbey, it is said that William Morecroft held Alton Grange (which is near the Altcar shooting range), in the parish of Sefton, by virtue of an indenture granted to Edward Mullinox, clerke, parson of Sefton, and Brian Morecroft, clarke, parson of Aughton, dated 28 February 1529-30, for nineteen years immediately ensuing, at a yearly rent of 2l. 13s. 4d. (Coucher Book, pp. 1214-15). In the same year, Thomas Halsall, J.P., and the tenants of Chareburton, co. York, charged this Edward Molyneux and Brian Morecroft with malicious persecution and maintenance of suit (Cal., vol. i, p. 136). Brian died in 1548 (Chant., p. 113). His successor was Ed'r'us Morecroft, who paid first-fruits 18 May 1548, and was the rector when this indenture was drawn up. The right of presentation was in dispute between Randoll Kyrkeby with Sir Thomas Kyrkeby, clerk, and William Morecroft and others (Cal., vol. i, p. 226); and in the next year it was under litigation between Gabriel Hesketh and Richard Molyneux (Ibid., p. 238. In 4. Edward VI. the manor of Uplytherland, and the advowson of Aghton, was still in dispute, and depositions were taken respecting the title-deeds shewing the same to be holden of the king in right of his duchy; and also that one James Bradshaw enfeoffed Sir Ed. Molineux, knt., and others, to his use, and afterwards made his will that the said Sir Edward should have the custody of the writings in a basket delivered into the Court of Exchequer (vol. ii, p. 110). About 1551 Edward Morecroft appeared at a visitation, together with Dns thomas Walche, cur', and he was also rector at Bishop Downham's visitation in 1562 (Piccope MSS., x, 158, 165; xvi, 221). About 1563 there were at Aighton 500 communicants, and the preacher (Morecroft) was non-resident (Dom. Ser., Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). The number of communicants in 1590 was the same, Mr. Rutter being then parson, and also dean of Chester (Lydiate Hall, p. 149).

Peter Stanley of Aughton, Esq., second son of Sir William Stanley of Hooton, knt., was the inheritor of Bickerstaff through his wife Elizabeth. About 1540 he was paying the stipend of John Doland, chantry priest in Ormskirk church, who was buried there 21 August 1558; as also of Richard Cropper. Peter Stanley, Esq., bore the great standard at the funeral of Edward, Earl of Derby, in 1574. His name frequently occurs in the Duchy Calendar with respect to lands at Mellor, Bickerstaff, &c. His inq. post mort., dated 30 Elizabeth, mentions (p. 60) his lands in the parishes of Aighton, Ormskirk, Sefton, &c. (Chant., p. 102; Stanley Papers, vol. ii, pp. 96-7; Wills, vol. ii, p. 282; Lydiate Hall, p. 231).

The commissioners took away a parcel-gilt silver chalice weighing 6½oz.; and the chapel itself was sold for either 13s. 4d. or 20s. (Chant., pp. 268, 277-8.)

Membrane No. 18. The parish is spelled Ormeschirche in the Nonarum Inquis., temp. Edward III.

In 1534-5 Robert Madoke was vicar (Valor, v, p. 223), being then in receipt of 101. out of the monastery of Burscough.

Hugh Huxley, clerk, late prior of Burscough, and others, were in dispute (31 Henry VIII.) with Sir James Stanley, knt., about the tithes of Ormeskirke (Duch. Cal., i, 163). In the same reign (no date) Hugh Huxley, clerk, proceeded against Thomas Gorsych and James Johnson for illegal arrest and tumult in the church. In 12 Henry VIII. Sir Hugh Huxley, clerk, Humphrey Hurleton and Robert Byrkheued, the king's farmers of his parsonage of Ormeskirke, prosecuted Thomas Gorsyche and others, his tenants, for refusing to assist in carrying the tythe corn of the plaintiffs (vol. ii, p. 64). The monastery of Burscough was re-surveyed, February 1538-9 (cf. p. 77), when the following details were rendered, Hugo Huxley being prior: "The first value iiij xil vij vjd; Seconde value Cxxiji vo vijd; Bells, lede, and goods ccccxiijii x* xd; Wodds worth to be solde xxvii; Debte owing by thouse iiijxxii iij viij Religiouse P'sones v; Serv'nts and others havynge livyngs there xlij; Thoffer for the Redempe'on of the said house to be paid at days mil iiijs " (Harl. MS. 604, f. 91). Sr Hughe Hucley [Huxley], pryor of Bruscoy, was buryed at Ormeskyrcke aforesayd the seconde daye of Maye Anno D'n'i 1558, and had a penc'on of [13l. 6s. 8d., Browne-Willis, vol. ii, p. 105] per ann'" (Special Commissions, No. 3258: of. Valor Ecclesiasticus, vol. v, p. 222; Lanc. and Chesh. Hist. Soc., third series, vol. v, p. 127).

Eliseus Ambrose was vicar of the parish about 1547; and about 1551 he attended a visitation in company with Dns Rob'tus Pobson, cur'; Dns homfridus Jacson; Dns Peter P'scott; Dns Ric'us cropp'; Dns Rogerus Shae; Dns Rob'tus Lyon; Dns hugo Woodheyu'r; Dns Gilb'tus Shurlacurs, buried 21 August 1558; Dns Jacobus Shurlacurs (of decrepit age); Dns Joannes raynsforth, buried 1 February 1576-7. An Ellis Ambrose occurs in the Duchy Calendar, 6 Elizabeth (vol. ii, p. 277). The vicar was buried 1 June 1572, before which date he was deprived of his living (Piccope MSS., x, 102, 159, 164-5; xvi, 243; Chant., p. 103; Lanc. and Chesh. Hist. Soc., third series, vol. v, p. 128).

Humphrey Jonson is probably the same person as Jacson above-named, formerly incumbent of the chantry of our Lady of Pity in Ormskirk church. In 1562 he attended his vicar at Bishop Downham's visitation. "S' Homfrey Jackeson, a chauntrie priest," was buried at Ormskirk 29 May 1567, being then in receipt of a pension (Special Commissions, 16 Elizabeth, No. 3258).

Roger Shawe was incumbent of the chantry of St. Mary Magdalene in this parish church (Valor, vol. v, p. 222; Chant., p. 100). Sir Roger Shawe, a chauntry priest, was buried at Ormskirk 2 August 1555, being then in receipt of a pension (Special Commissions, at anted).

About 1563 there were 3000 communicants. The parsonage impropriate was worth 300l., the vicarage being 20l. There was no preacher (Dom. Ser., Elizabeth, vol. xxxi, No. 47). The same number of communicants, including those of Latham chapel, were reported in 1590, the vicar then being no preacher.

The ancient number of six wardens was retained in Gastrell's day, one for each town, chosen at their respective courts (Not. Cest., vol. ii, p. 198). There was an influential family of the name of Ambrose in this parish, some of whom became vicars. Richard Ambrose was instituted vicar 9 February 1571-2, having been presented by Thomas Hopford, gent., Ric. Ambrose and Henry Webster pro hac vice; and he was buried 7 February 1612-13. William Knowles followed; and to him succeeded Henry Ambrose in 1615, who was buried 25 April 1628. Richard, the churchwarden of the inventory, appears in the Duchy Calendar, 4, 6, and 33 Elizabeth (vol. ii, pp. 237, 275; vol. iii, p. 276).

Eight bells were said to have been brought from Burscough priory, the tower being built for them. Two of them have the dates 1497 and 1576. Thomas, the second Earl of Derby, on his death, 1521, bequeathed 30l. to the churchwardens of Ormskirk to buy a bell for their church (Collins's Peerage, edit. Brydges, vol. iii, p. 69).

Membrane No. 1. This parish was called North Meols to distinguish it from Argamelys (so spelled in 1504) in the same district, or Ravensmeols, near Formby. The ancient form was Melas. In the Inquis. Non., Edw. III., the place is called Mels; laler it was Meles or Melse; and lastly Meols. The explanation of the word is accurately given in Cowell's useful Interpreter, thus: "The Shelves of Sand or Banks on the Sea-Coasts on Norfolk are called the Meals and the Males."

At the date of the Valor, 1534-5, Robertus Faryngton was the Rector of Northmelis (v. 223). In 1551 Dns Laurencius Waterword was Rector, his assistants then being Dns Jacobus hogekinson and Dns Edmu'dus hogeson (Piccope MSS., vol. xvi, p. 158). About the same date the following case is found in the Duchy records: Laurence Waterward, Clerk, Parson of Northmells Chace, v. John Bolde: Interruption of Way to lands and grounds called Parson's Meadows (vol. i, p. 261). On 15 Aug., 1554, Peter Prescott was instituted; and he, as Parson of North Meyles Church, was, in 1554-5, disputing with John Fletewood, John Bolde, and others, about the title to the mansion-house, glebe-lands, and tithes (vol. i, p. 280). Upon Prescott's death, 1557-8, the Bishop of Sodor and Man succeeded, whom we have mentioned under § Winwick, antea, p. 64. Under Northmelis, in 1562, the Bishop is entered as "Ep'us Sodoren: rect.," without any curates, although a little earlier Edmund Hodgson was acting as curate. Northmelis was one of the rectories that Bishop Stanley neglected. About the year 1563 there were 1,000 communicants, the value of the parsonage being £80. There was no preacher (Dom. Ser. Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47). In 1582-3 Peter Clayton, or Clinton, is described as clerk, Parson of North Meiles (Duchy Cal., vol. iii, p. 141). In 1590 it was thought necessary to report that the parson, Mr. John Hill, was a preacher (Rev. T. E. Gibson's Lydiate Hall, p. 249).

The title to certain lands and pasturage in this parish was matter of litigation in the Duchy Court, 2 and 3 Philip and Mary (1555-6). The plaintiffs were Henry Halsall, claiming as grandson of Sir Henry Halsall, Knight, and son of Sir Thomas Halsall, Knt., who was son and heir of the said Sir Henry, and as such seized of the manor of Birkdale with the lands and appurtenances, and particularly a house and 600 acres of land called Meindale. The defendants were Edmond Holme, Richard Barton, and others, Edmond claiming as son and heir to his father Richard, deceased, to be scized of the manor of Anoldisdall [Aynsdale], and of and in eight stallages or fisheyards, and containing 800 acres of land adjoyning to the manor of Birkdale, and insisting that the manor of Birkdale was in the parish of Meles, and the manor of Anoldisdall, and that the stallages or fishyards were in the parish of Walton. The depositions of the plaintiff's witnesses shewed that the lands in variance had been always called Meynedale and Byrkdale Hawes, and adjoined the manor and Lordship of Fornebie; shewed also the boundaries and the right to pasturage of cattle for the tenants of Fornbie and Halsall (vol. ii, p. 184).

Gastrell records but three wardens (vol. ii, p. 195). Of those named in the inventory the most common is Rimmer. Oliver Rymer of North Meles occurs 33 Eliz. (Cal., vol. iii, p. 252). The name is also frequent in the churchyard. Over the chief door of the church were formerly the inscriptions which follow: "James Rimer, Robert Ball, Thomas Rimer, Churchwardens; James Whitehead, Rector, 1730." "This church was enlarged 1860, Charles Hesketh, Rector; Thomas Baker, Meols Hall, Geoffrey Rimmer, Moss Lane, Robert Marshall, Birkdale, Wardens; Richard Wright and Sons, Southport, Builders."

Blackburn Hundred.

OF this hundred there have been preserved the Indentures of one parish only, that of Blackburn, signed on Saturday, 15 October, 1552.

The Inquisition was in charge of Sir Thomas Holt, Knt., Ralph Assheton, Esq., and John Braddyll, gent.

Sir Thomas Holt of Grislehurst, has been noticed anted (p. 3), in connection with the same duty which he performed in Salford hundred. Shortly before his death, having some interest in the advowson of Prestwich rectory, he was appointed an arbitrator in a dispute between Mr. Edmund Assheton of Chaderton and the second William Langley, rector of Prestwich.

Ralph Assection, Esq., was one of the family of Assheton of Whalley Abbey and Great Lever, being probably the elder brother of Richard Assheton, Esq., who purchased Whalley Abbey at the close of the reign of Edward VI. (Whitaker's Whalley, vol. ii, p. 2; vol. i, p. 134; Visit. 1533, p. 62).

John Braddyll of Brockholes and Whalley, Esq., is to be found in the family pedigree in Whitaker's Whalley. He was akin to the Asshetons of Whalley and Lever. He married Jennet, daughter of John Forster of Whalley, the marriage settlement being dated 2 May, 1533. He seems to have forecast the signs of the times. In 1539 the bailiwick of the demesnes of Whalley Abbey was by letters patent committed to John Braddyll, gent. In June 1553 he managed to convert the trust into property; for he, in conjunction with Richard Ashton, a younger son of the Ashtons of Lever, bought the entire manor from the crown. He was deeply implicated in the traffic in Church lands, a volume in possession of the family being filled with grants that had passed through his hands. In the Appendix to the IXth Report of the Deputy-Keeper of the Public Records is a long series of petitions from him for the purchase from the crown of farms, rents, &c., in the counties of Lancaster, York, &c., occupying 34 membranes. Henry Craven, ordained an acolyte at Chester in 1557, was afterwards sub-deacon and deacon on the title of Mr. John Bradell of Brockhoole, gent. (Piccope MSS., x, 74, 77). His death took place upon 12 Nov., 1578. His will, which is a document of considerable interest, is dated 31 May, 1575; and it was proved on 1 September, 1579. He makes Richard Ashton one of the supervisors. He bequeathed his estates to his son Edward, saying that the greater part of them was "given and came to me by a special gifte and sufferance of Almighty God, without any deserte of me at all, by reason of byinge and sellinge of lands that I bought of Kinge Henry the Eighte, and thereby gaite gaines to the intente that I shold distribute to the poore and be myself for a common welth and all my succession likewisse." He bespeaks the prayers of his neighbours for himself and family, Thomas Sherburne, Esq., Sir Thomas Holcroft, Knt., deceased, &c., "who were all my speciall good maisters with whom I served one after another during their lyves, and moste specially for King Henry the Eight, whose soules God pardon by whom my first risinge and gaine was gotten by byenge and sellinge of lands and other divers bargains." To his son Edward he left all his books as well statutes, chronicles, as others, except one great book made by Sir Thomas More, Knt., which he bequeathes to his daughter Jenette (Coucher Book of Whalley Abbey, pp. x, 1175 seq.; Assheton's Journal, Introd., pp. iv, 14; Lanc. and Chesh. Wills, vol. ii, pp. 106 seq.; Whitaker's Whalley, vol. i, p. 134; vol. ii, pp. 3-4; Lanc. Visit. 1567, p. 27; 1664-5, p. 47).

[Seals gone.]

Ranulph Lynney paid his first-fruits as vicar of Blackburn, 12 February, 27 Henry VIII. (1535-6). He attended Bishop Bird's visitation at Blackburn, circa 1551 (Piccope MSS., x, 153); and on 25 August, 1551, he, with members of the Bolton family, attested the will of his neighdour John Talbot of Salesbury, Esq., styling himself vicar of Blackburn (Lanc. and Chesh. Wills, vol. iii, pp. 105-6).

Lynney is referred to in the letter of Bp. Pilkington, who took an interest in the parishes of his native county, to Archbishop Parker. He is dealing, circa 1551, with the things that are amiss in "your great cures." "The old vicar of Blackburne Roger [sic] Linney, resigned for a pension, and now liveth with Sir John Birom" (Parker Corresp., in Parker Soc., p. 222; Pilkington's Works in Parker Soc., p. vii; Strype's Life of Parker, bk. ii, chap. 26; cf. Whitaker's Whalley, new ed., vol. ii, p. 312). His name is not to be found on the list in Baines's Lanc., new ed., vol. ii, p. 67. but the date of the institution of his successor, James Hargreaves, is there given as 24 October, 1555.

An account of the Bolton family of Brookhouse is to be found in Mr. Abram's History of Blackburn (pp. 262 seq.) A Richard Bolton, living in 1545, had sons Adam, Giles, and Robert; and the name Giles re-appears also in the successive generations. To this family belonged Robert Bolton, B.D., the divine and scholar, born at Blackburn 25 May, 1572. There was only one representative of the Isherwood family in Blackburn a century later.

In this Inventory we get the popular pronunciation of the name of the town.

Blackburn. These five bells of Blackburn church probably formed part of the ancient peal of six, thus described in Mr. Abram's History of Blackburn (p. 308):

1st bell: Vivos voco, mortuos plango, fulgura frango.

2nd bell: Lando Deum, plebem voco, congrego clerum; defunctos ploro, pestem fugo, festa decoro.

3rd bell: Funera plango, fulgura frango, Sabbata pango.

4th bell: Excito lentos, dissipo ventos, paco cruentos.

5th bell: Nomen Jesu Christe, tu attendas et defendas.

6th bell: Te laudamus et rogamus; nos a morte tristi.

In 1690 the bells were five in number, which in 1737 were all recast into six, by Abel Rudhall of Gloucester.

The other clergymen who sign the document indicate the chapelries of Blackburn.

Great Harwood. Richard Woods was curate of St. Bartholomew's. He is mentioned in the Valor of 1534 as the chaplain. The Chantry Commissioners of Henry VIII., 1546-7, reported that he was still there, aged 80 years (Lanc. Chant., pp. 145-7; of. Piocope MSS., x, 153.)

In 1546-7 there was a silver chalice of 8 oz., and two vestments of tawny and black chamlet, respectively, belonging to the chantry. In consequence of the above inventory the Commissioners gave up to Edward Parker two of the bells at Harwood, weighing 5½ cwt., the value being 41. 2s. 6d. (Lanc. Chant. pp. 146, 274).

Lawe (Walton). Thomas France, curate of St. Leonard's, Walton-le-Dale (commonly called Lowe or Lawe), appears in a visitation-call, circa 1534, as Thomas French, and under the same name he was there in 1556 (Piccope MSS., x, 114; xvi, 193). At Bp. Bird's visitation (1551) there appeared from Lowe Dns Edward Molding rectr'; Dns Thomas french and Dns thomas dale (Ibid., x. 153).

About 1642 there were a few representatives in the chapelry of the Winkeley family, but that of Leman does not appear. Both the Churchreeves named in the inventory were summoned to Whalley, April, 1554, to answer enquiries about their bells which had not been delivered up to the collector. They deposed they were still remaining at the chapel. Their weight was 18 cwt., and their value 131. 10s. The plate, weighing 10 oz., consisting of a parcel-gilt chalice, was given up without demur. They also seem to have given up their broken bell, which weighed 18 cwt., valued at 131. 10s. (Lanc. Chant., pp. 259 seq.)

The ancient peal of four bells in the tower of Walton church was replaced in 1761 by the present peal of six bells (Whitaker's Whalley, vol. ii, p. 330).

Samesbury. Thomas Dale, curate of the chapel of S. Leonard, Samesbury. In 1562 Dns Radūs Sudill cur' appeared at a visitation of Bp. Downham's (Piccope MSS., x, 164).

The collector of the property under the present Commission took away one of the little bells, weighing 80 lbs., the value of which was 12s. The other, which was of the same weight, and valued at 10s., the parishioners refused to deliver up; and the matter was accordingly reported upon. Before the Commissioners who investigated this and other cases of default, at Whalley, April, 1554, the two churchreeves of Samesbury, who were then Gilbert Sharples and Thomas Wynkeley, deposed that the bell was still there. It was probably soon afterwards removed (Lanc. Chant., pp. 258-9, 265, 276, 281).

There were representatives of the families of Sharples and Ward in the chapelry in the succeeding century.

Without enumerating any churches, Bishop Bird reports that this deanery had not put away or alienated any of the property.

In the Report dated about 1563, in Bishop Downham's time, it is said that Blackburn had 5000 communicants. The parsonage impropriate to the Archbishop of Canterbury was of the yearly value of 500l., the vicarage being 30l. There was a preacher, not painful. To it was annexed Low church, Samsbury church, and Harwood church, all valued at 4l. each; no preachers (Dom. Ser. Elis., vol. xxxi, No. 47).

Whalley. In the same document the following particulars are given of Whalley: There were 10,000 communicants. The parsonage impropriate to the Archbishop of Canterbury was of the yearly value of 500l, the value of the vicarage being 50l. There was a preacher insufficient. To it was annexed these churches following, described as having belonging to every one of them "a great people," but no preachers: Clitherowe 4¹¹. Downham 4¹¹, Colne 4¹¹, Burnley 4¹¹, Padiham 4¹¹, Altham 4¹¹, Churchkirke 4¹¹, Haslingden 4¹¹, New Churche in Rosen 4¹¹, New Kirke in Pendle 4¹¹. Thus in the fifteen churches named there were 15,000 communicants; only two preachers "whereof thone is insufficient, thother not painefull."

The old bells of Whalley, dated from 1515 onward, are described in Whitaker, vol. i, p. 96; vol. ii, p. 5; and the ecclesiastical vestments, &c., vol. i, p. 185 seq.

The following paper, taken from the Duchy Lancaster Pleadings (Phil. and Mary, vol. iii, T. 13; Calendar, vol. i, p. 282), will supply the inventory of one of the chapelries in this parish, viz., Burnley. Richard Towneley, Esq., and the wardens of Burnley church enter an action in 1553 against Sir Richard Townley, Knt., and others for the restitution of the church vestments and jewels, the church not being a Free Chapel nor Chantry. Their case is thus stated:

"Richard Towneley Esq., Lawrence Habriam, Symon Hadocke, and John Parkers churchwardens of the parish of BURNELEY within the County of Lancaster as well for and on behalf as also for and in the behalf of the rest and residew of the parishioners within the same parish, that where the said Churchwardens of the parish Church aforesaid were lawfully possessed of four bells with clappers and Irron whereby the same did hang in the steeple of the said Church iij chalises iiij patentes or couers for chalices all of silver parcel gilt a sute of vestiments of crymson velvet embrodered with braunches of gold on cope of the same iiij fyne albes iiij olde vestements one vestment of blew Satten and 2 Vestments for Deacon and Subdeacon of the same on cope of blacke velvet faced about with golde on fyne Corporas case one hand bell iij little sacring bells a crosse of tinne and gilt two candelstyks of maslyn as of the ornaments goods and jewells belonging and appertaining to the said parish Church of Burneley given assigned and appoynted for the maintenance and sustentation of devyne service to be said and celebrated within the said parish church the which church is distant from any other church four miles or above and is and time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary have been knowen taken reputed and called as a parish church for the inhabitants and dwellers within the same parisshe web be to the number of two thowsand husslynge people or thereabouts web do continually dwell and inhabite wien the said parish of Burneley And yo' said Orators forthen say that there is and time where of the memory of man is not to the contrary hathe been used to wedde and bury within the said parish church of Burneley and to administer all time of Sacraments and Sacramentals accordinge to the rytes and ceremonyes of Holy Church in as large and ample manner as ys used in any other parish church within the County of Lancaster or elsewhere within England.

"So it is &c.

"Sir Richd. Towneley knt. Francis Bold John Norbury and Edward Parker about 6th of May last past by color of commission of Edw^d VI. out of the Duchy directed and addressed unto the said Francis Bolds and others named in the said Commission concerning the sale of Copes vestments chalices and other ornaments and jewells belonging to free chapels and chantreys within the same Countie given and granted to Edw. vith by force of an estate made in first of his reign, have wrongfully without any just cause title or ground defaced and spoyed the said parish church of Burneley and taken away the said bells &c. and amounting in value to 120l. and above. And they wrongfully detain the same from plts not only to their wrong but to dekaying of devine service within the said Church. They were not entitled to same as it was nether chantry or free chapel but a parish church for the parishioners of same parish &c. In tender consideration &c."

An unusually large chalice of silver weighing 13½ oz. was taken away from Burnley by the last commission of Edw. VI.'s reign (Chant., p. 269). The sum of 201. 5s. was put into Parker's account, being the proceeds of the sale of 3 bells and one saunce bell weighing 27 cwt. (Ibid., p. 275).

Lepland Hundred.

"In Lelandshire," says Leland (Itin., vol. v, p. 80), "be about an Eight Paroche Chirchis, wherof Leland Paroche is one, and, as I remember, Standich another." There are eight Indentures left of this hundred. The Commissioners were John Wrightington, Esq., Hugh Anderton, Esq., and Mr. Evan Walls, and they signed their reports on Thursday, 6 October, 1552.

John Wrightington of Wrightington, near Standish, was one of the commanders of the military muster of the year 1553, in the Leyland hundred. His will is dated August. 1558. In it he bequeathes 6s. 8d. to Sir Richard Mody, the parson of his church, "for his pains with me"; and he also gives to the building of the church 40s., besides 20s. given by his father (Wills, vol. i, pp. 69-70).

Hugh Anderton was of Euxton, near Preston, and was allied to the Standish family.

Evan Wall of Preston, gent., belonged to a family of standing in that town. Their pedigree was entered with Flower in 1567. The name Evan or Ewan was common at Preston. In 1542 Wall was a prominent member of the guild merchant, and at that guild, as well as the next in 1562, when his brother Thomas was mayor, several of the family were enrolled freemen. Another brother, Lawrence, was vicar of Preston. Evan occurs in a note in Lanc. Chant., p. 157.

Leyland Deanery, with the other northern deaneries, was not a district remarkable for active Protestantism. Bishop Bird reported that this deanery had not alienated or put away any of the church property. Under the separate parishes, passages are quoted from a Report, dated about 1563, by which it is seen that there were 11,000 communicants in the deanery, consisting of six churches (Chorley is not mentioned). There was but one preacher "infirmed," and two were non-resident.

Charles Wainwright, who answered the episcopal "calls" from about 1540 to 1562, was vicar up to February, 1562-3, when his successor was appointed (Piccope MSS., x, 104, 155, 166; xvi, 121).

The names of the wardens are all still local, and the number of four still held in Gastrell's time.

About 1563, there were 3000 communicants. The parsonage impropriate is set down at 300l., the vicarage at 30l. There was a preacher non-resident (Dom. Ser. Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47).

Richard Layton paid his first-fruits as rector of Eccleston, 33 Henry VIII. (1541), though Piccope's notes assign an earlier date (x, 104; xvi, 115). On his promotion to be dean and canon residentiary of York, a successor, John Modye, was instituted 10 July, 1544, and as "Sir John Mauldrie, parson of Eccleston," he was buried at Ormskirk, 16 October, 1562, having, in July of that year, answered a call at Wigan (Hist. Soc. Lanc., 3rd ser., vol. v, p. 127). In an episcopal visitation, to which the date August, 1551 is attached, the name of "Mr. Doctor Leyton rect." is erased and John Modie written over it (Piccope MSS., x, 156). The latter was chaplain and almoner at Latham to Edward Earl of Derby, and a zealous member of the reformed faith.

Eccleston, about 1563, had 1500 communicants. The parsonage was worth 2001. There was no preacher; and it is added "no Res." (Dom. Ser. Eliz., vol. xxxi, No. 47).

The Thirty-eighth Report

OF THE

COUNCIL OF THE CHETHAM SOCIETY,

Read at the Annual Meeting, held, by permission of the Feoffees, in the Audit Room of Chetham's Hospital, on Wednesday, the 16th day of March, 1881.

THE Council have to report that the delay in issuing the eleventh part of the Rev. Thomas Corser's Collectanea Anglo-Poetica, intended to be the third volume for the year 1879-80, has arisen from the strong desire expressed by many of the members that in addition to the Table of Contents with the prices which each book fetched at Mr. Corser's sale, there should be a general particular Index to the whole work, to appear in the concluding volume. The preparation of this will retard the issue of part eleven a short time, but the Collectanea series will be much benefited by the addition.

The works proposed for the year 1880-81 are, first, the concluding volume, No. 111 in the Chetham series, of The Visitation of Lancashire and a part of Cheshire made in the Twenty-fourth year of King Henry the 8th, A.D. 1533, by special commission of Thomas Benalt. Edited by WILLIAM LANGTON, Esq. This completes the return of the fifty-seven families recorded in the Visitation. and though the text is concise and even meagre, the interesting commentary and elucidations which the learned Editor has appended render what would be otherwise dry genealogy very attractive. Amongst the leading names and families are Bruche of Bruche, Stanley of Crosshall, Farington of Farington, Hesketh of Rufford, Banastre of the Bank, Beconsall of Beconsall, Tarbock of Tarbock, Sir W. Molyneux and More of Bank house. The Council congratulate the members on the expected speedy appearance of this volume, which will render the series, and a most important stries it is, of Lancashire Visitations complete.

The second work for the year 1880-81 is to be Inventories of Goods in the Churches and Chapels in Lancashire, taken in the year 1552. Edited by John Eglington Bailey, F.S.A., second and concluding part. This portion, with an Historical Introduction to the subject, is intended to contain the inventories of the Churches and Chapels in the Hundred of West Derby and in the remaining Hundreds of Lancashire. The indentures of the Ecclesiastical property are accompanied with illustrative documents and notes. This and the previous part have been printed uniformly with Canon Raines's Lancashire Chantries, as being a continuation of the same subject, the transition of the Clergy from Romanism to Protestantism. Whatever was wanting to explain and give interest to the text has been provided by the diligent and extensive research of the Editor and Annotator, Mr. Bailey.

The third volume for 1880-1, will be Two Compoti of Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, of the date of the 30th January, 1297, respecting his Lands in Lancashire and Cheshire, edited by W. Langton, Esq. Such documentary records as those printed in this volume are amongst the most important which an Historical and Antiquarian Society can lay before the public. They contribute most essentially to give a firm footing in all local and genealogical researches, and to throw the strongest light upon the habits, manners and tenures and relations of the different classes of society. There is not a page in these compoti which does not afford valuable facts and information in connexion with the history of Lancashire and Cheshire, and, therefore, the members must all be indebted to Mr. Langton for the care and pains he has taken in adding evidences of such a character to the general stock of materials brought together by the agency of the Chetham Society.

The foregoing three volumes are all in progress of printing, and will be issued as speedily as possible. There will then remain of the works enumerated in the report of the council for 1879-80, first, The Diary and Correspondence of Dr. John Worthington, vol. ii., the second and concluding part, being 114 in the series, which the editor, the President of the Chetham Society, has undertaken to proceed with as little delay as possible; and second, the continuation of the General Index, from the 31st volume of the series to and including the last mentioned volume, which two works may be taken as the publications for the year 1881-82.

As, after these issues, the Chetham Society's series will have extended to 113 volumes, exclusive of the two Indexes, the period will have arrived when, in accordance with what appears to be the general wish of the members and the examples afforded by the Camden and other similar Societies, a new series of the Chetham Society's publications, with such distinctive differences as the experience obtained in working the present may have suggested, can be conveniently entered upon, and indeed from its obvious advantages becomes almost a matter of course. For this second series it may be at present sufficient to state that Mr. John Eglington Bailey, F.S.A., has kindly consented to act prospectively as Honorary Secretary, and any communications with respect to works and subjects proposed to form part of its publications are requested to be made to him, Egerton Villa, Stretford, near Manchester.

The Thirty-ninth Report

OF THE

COUNCIL OF THE CHETHAM SOCIETY,

Read at the Annual Meeting, held, by permission of the Feoffees, in the Audit Room of Chetham's Hospital, on Wednesday, the 29th day of March, 1882.

THE Council have to regret that various causes have combined to retard the issue of the remaining Volumes included in the first series of the Chetham Society's Publications, which have been fully noticed in previous reports, consisting of the Eleventh and concluding part of Collectanea Anglo-Poetica—the second and concluding part of the Inventories of Goods in the Churches and Chapels in Lancashire, taken in the year 1552—the Compotus of Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, of the date of the 30 January 1297, respecting his Lands in Lancashire and Cheshire—the concluding part of the Diary and Correspondence of Dr. John Worthington—and the continuation of the General Index of the Publications of the Chetham Society, from the thirty-first volume to the conclusion of the present Series.

All these volumes, however, are in progress, and will be issued with as little delay as is practicable. The cause which has prevented the appearance of two of them in particular before the present date—the concluding volume of the Visitation of 1533, and the Lacy Compotus of 1297—has been the lamented loss of one of the most valued members of the Society, the late Mr. WILLIAM LANGTON, the Editor of those Publications. On the establishment of the Chetham Society in 1843, in which throughout its progress he always felt the deepest interest, Mr. LANGTON accepted the office of Treasurer, and subsequently on the removal from Manchester of its able and indefatigable Hon. Secretary, Dr. FLEMING, succeeded him in that office, and continued to hold it till the pressure of his various avocations compelled him to relinquish it in 1868, when the duties were undertaken by the present Hon. Sec., Mr. R. H. Wood, to whose persevering and very valuable services the Society has been so much indebted. As an Editor, Mr. Langton's knowledge was so extensive and accurate, and whatever he undertook was so carefully executed, that it is to be regretted that more volumes have not appeared in the Series embodying the results of his well-digested materials and research. Of the three very interesting Miscellaneous collections contributed by himself and others - vols. 24, 37 and 57 in the Series - he took the general Editorial superintendence. He edited also the two volumes of the Townley Inquisitions post mortem — vols. 95 and 99 and the first part of the Visitation of Lancashire - vol. 98. Notwithstanding the sad deprivation of eyesight, and the difficulty where so many minute historical dates and facts are concerned of conscientiously verifying the points involved, (and if ever there was a conscientious genealogist it was Mr. Langton,) his memory was so prompt and exact, and his command over the materials he had collected so perfect, that with the aid of an Amanuensis he had well nigh brought the 2nd Vol. of the Visitation to a close, determined to leave nothing undone which he had taken in hand for the Chetham Society, when in the midst of his labors the final stroke came which deprived us of one who, in addition to his many other distinguishing merits, must ever rank as a very accomplished Antiquary and one to whom the Chetham Society owes much of its permanence and success.

The Council cannot conclude this report without referring to the very useful "Chronological List of the Chetham Society's Publications" which has been carefully prepared by Mr. J. E. BAILEY, F.S.A., and which ought to be in the hands of every member. It is in the 4to. form so as to range with the Chetham Series, and gives the contents of the Vols. in historical sequence, and affords a List also of works which have been at various times suggested but have not hitherto been taken in hand.
